St. Ignatius

THESE MEN, PRESIDENTS OF ST. IGNATIUS COLLEGE, HAVE BEEN THE PRIME FACTORS IN THE GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE COLLEGE. BY THEIR ABILITY AND SELF-SACRIFICING LABORS FOR THE SCHOOL FROM 1870 TO 1908 THEY HAVE MERITED A PLACE IN THE ANNALS OF GREAT EDUCATORS.

THE JESUITS.

Description of St. Ignatius College, in the West Division.

The Building---Its History---Its Internal Arrangements.

On the corner of Twenty and Madison streets, in this city, stands a building of white brick and terra cotta, which is known to the people of Chicago as St. Ignatius College. It is a fine example of the architecture of the Jesuits, and is one of the most important educational institutions in the city. The building was erected by the Jesuits, and is now the property of the University of Chicago. It is a large, modern building, with many rooms and a fine library. The Jesuits have been in the city for many years, and have done much good work. They have founded many schools and colleges, and have been instrumental in the development of the city. The Jesuits are a religious order, and are known for their devotion and scholarship. They are a part of the Catholic Church, and are one of the most important groups in the world. IN 1900 THE LAST PRESIDENT OF ST. IGNATIUS HANDED THE BATON OF LEADERSHIP TO THE FIRST PRESIDENT OF LOYOLA UNIVERSITY AND TO HIS SUCCESSORS. THESE PRESIDENTS, SIX IN ALL, HAVE FOR THIRTY TWO YEARS WORKED FOR LOYOLA IN SUCH WISE AS TO MAKE IT NOT ONLY ONE OF THE LARGEST CATHOLIC UNIVERSITIES BUT ALSO ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT EDUCATIONAL FACTORS IN THE MIDDLE WEST.

The Reverend Alexander J. Burrowes, S.J., was the first president of Loyola University, and during his administration the first buildings were erected on the Lake Shore Campus. Because of his zeal in promoting the cause of Catholic education, and because of his material and spiritual farsightedness for Loyola, this section dealing with the University of which he was first president has been dedicated to his memory.

Archbishop Stritch

This year has seen the advent of a new archbishop to Chicago. To a man whose record has so consistently shown him to be wholeheartedly absorbed in the problems of youth and of Catholic education, we, the students of Loyola University, can extend only the most heartfelt welcome. We concur most heartily with the words of Bishop Sheil: "Both by experience and by fine talent of mind and heart he will lead this great Archdiocese of Chicago to new heights of achievement for the glory of God and the salvation of souls." It is most fitting that to Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch we dedicate the 1940 Loyolan.

Father Wilson

When last year the Reverend Samuel Knox Wilson, S.J., president of Loyola University was being interviewed, he remarked, "I have achieved two things at Loyola; I introduced the honors courses and I planted trees." And it is with considerable truth that he has made this remark for the introduction of the Honors courses has been one of the most far reaching steps in education that has been taken at the University. As a leader in progressive education and as an eminent authority in history, Father Wilson has received national recognition. He has received his Ph.D. degree in history from Cambridge University and is the author of a widely used textbook on American history.

His interest in the University has been both scholarly and intensely practical. Like the trees which he has planted and which will grow to maturity only after many years, so will many of his ideas for the expansion of the University be realized in the years to come.

As Father Wilson completes his seventh year as president, the student body cannot but feel proud of him for his outstanding career as a nationally known and respected educator, for his many services to Loyola, and for the progress which Loyola has made under his guidance.

Attending and presiding at commencement ceremonies and holding faculty receptions are but a few of the duties Father Wilson assumes as president. He is in great demand as a speaker, is active in educational groups, and is also of recognized authority as an historian.

THE REVEREND SAMUEL KNOX WILSON. S.J.

Administrative Council

It is exceedingly difficult for a religious order to handle properly the financial affairs of a large educational institution, such as Loyola. Trained for educational and religious purposes, clerics are not meant to administer affairs in the financial world. Realizing this fact, the previous presidents of the University set about procuring a body that would serve as advisor and administrator of the financial business of the University.

Loyola has been most fortunate in her choice of administrators. She has acquired men for that Council whose personal records in the business world present the answer to Loyola's successful financial condition of today.

The Administrative Council is made up of a general adviser, a legal adviser, and three committees of three members each. These committees are designated as the Finance Committee, the Public Relations Committee, and the Buildings and Grounds Committee.

The first of these committees is particularly active in the supervision of investments. The workings and duties of the latter two are to shape the advertising and public policies of the school, and to advise on major problems connected with Loyola's buildings and other properties. Just as the Academic Council insures proper management and regulation of the educational side of the institution, so the Administrative Council insures the proper handling of the financial end of the school. The whole council meets annually but once, but committee meetings are called more frequently, and the advice of individual members is sought whenever needed by the officers of the University.

Academic Council

The Academic Council had its origin in the University Senate founded in 1928 by the Reverend Robert M. Kelley, S.J., the president at the time. The Council is made up of the regents, deans, and assistant deans of the various branches of the University together with the central registrar and the president. This board serves in an advisory capacity to the president on matters involving the educational policy of two or more branches of the university as a whole.

This organization enables the president to keep in close touch with all the various departments and schools, and to give personal consideration to all problems presented. Too, it provides these educators an opportunity to contact other departments, and to appreciate or advise those departments in their workings.

The Graduate School

THE REVEREND AUSTIN G. SCHMIDT, S. J.
the first Dean of the Graduate School,
held office from 1926 to 1932

In 1926, the Graduate School of Loyola University was founded in order to organize and supervise the graduate courses that were being offered at some of the other schools of the university. Although its existence has been limited to fourteen short years, it has, nevertheless, exerted considerable influence in the field of research and scholarship throughout this area. Father Agnew, then President of the University, founded the Graduate School and made the Reverend Austin G. Schmidt, S.J., its first Dean.

At the beginning the Master of Arts degree was offered in Education, Law, Medicine, Psychology, and Sociology, as well as the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Education. Later the graduate degrees in Medicine and Law were discontinued and advanced work in Sociology was replaced by the degree in Social Work. Advanced courses leading to the Master's degree in History, English, Mathematics, Philosophy, French, and Chemistry were placed on the curriculum. Doctoral work in English, Latin, Philosophy, and History was added. This year the first Doctor of Philosophy in Chemistry was awarded to Clyde Aubrey Crowley. Fourteen other graduate degrees were also awarded this year at the Midyear Convocation.

When, in 1932, Father Schmidt resigned to take charge of the Loyola University Press, Father Samuel Knox Wilson, S.J., took charge of the school. His tenure of office was for only twelve months, for at the completion of the term he was appointed President of the University. He was succeeded by the Reverend Francis J. Gerst, S.J., the present incumbent.

The school offers five degrees. Since earliest university times the degree of Master of Arts has been the traditional and historical degree. It has been awarded by the universities of Bologna, Salerno, Paris, and Oxford, for over six hundred years. The degree of Master of Science is neither as old nor as traditional as the Arts degree, but it carries much weight and prestige. The degree of Doctor of Philosophy is, of course, the highest scholastic degree indicating advanced and detailed research work. Every candidate for a doctoral degree is obliged to present in his thesis evidence of having engaged in original research work in the field in which he is being examined. The degree of Master of Education, one of the most popular degrees in Graduate School Work, was introduced to fill the needs of those who felt that they needed an advanced degree but who were unable to devote the time to fulfilling the requirements of the more stringent Arts Curriculum. After the establishment of the honors program in undergraduate work, plans were immediately formulated for continuing Honors work in the Graduate School, culminating in the degree of Master of Arts with Honors. The program has met with considerable success in the several years that it has now been operating.

THE REVEREND HENRY DUMBACH, S.J., eleventh president of the institution, founder of the site of the present Lake Shore Campus and builder of Dumbach Hall

The Lake Shore Campus of Loyola University comprises both the College of Arts and Sciences and the Day division of the Commerce School. Its site was selected in 1906 by Father Dumbach and the first building, Dumbach Hall was erected in 1909. Shortly after through the generosity of Michael Cudahy a new building was erected bearing the name of the donor. During the twenties the faculty building and gymnasium were erected and in 1932 the library was donated to the University in memory of Elizabeth Cudahy.

Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences founded in 1870 under the name of St. Ignatius College moved to its present site of the lake shore in 1922. At present the Lake Shore Campus is composed of eight buildings and has an enrollment of about six hundred students.

The students of this branch of the University display great school spirit lending themselves enthusiastically to the extra-curricular activities of the school. From their numbers come many of the leaders of the University. The students of the North Shore Campus form a majority in the various clubs and in the dramatic and musical organizations. They hold the staff positions on the University publications and provide the eager participation in the intramural and intercollegiate sports.

The Student Council which is the governing body of the campus has sponsored several major events throughout the year, chief among which was Loyalty Week held at the close of the basketball season as a tribute to the team as well as to the other squads representing Loyola University in intercollegiate sports. The unqualified success of this venture has reflected much credit upon the Council.

Student government at Loyola as represented by the student council shows frosh the error of his way, in refusing to wear the green cap. A small fine for the first offense, suspension for the second is the rule.

Many members of the faculty are working on advanced degree. Russell Koppa of the Chemistry department is shown as he receives his Master's hood at the Midyear Convocation.

The June Convocation means the end of four years' work for the undergraduates. An impressive spectacle, it never fails to make one appreciate the solemnity of the occasion.

School of Medicine

THE REVEREND JOHN B. FURAY, S. J.
President of Loyola University under whose administration the School of Medicine was established in 1915.

The Loyola University School of Medicine became an integral part of Loyola University in 1915 upon purchase by the University of Bennett Medical College which had been established in 1868. In order to better meet the trends in medical education then being advocated by the American Medical Association, the University in 1917 acquired the purchase of Chicago College of Medicine and Surgery.

The physical facilities were improved and teaching in the basic sciences was given over to full time faculty personnel, each member of which is specialized in his particular field. Loyola University School of Medicine is an approved School of the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association and is a member of the Association of American Medical Colleges.

Preclinical or fundamental studies are conducted in the laboratory building at 706 South Wolcott Avenue, equipped with library, museums, laboratories and offices of administration for the teaching staff. Clinical studies are conducted mainly at Mercy Hospital, Cook County Hospital, and in the affiliated and public hospitals. The teaching in Mercy Hospital is under direct control of the closed staff, all members of the faculty of Loyola University School of Medicine. In the affiliated institutions teach-

The clinical units at Mercy are now designated as Mercy Hospital-Loyola University Clinics, owned and financially administrated by the Religious Sisters of Mercy, Province of Chicago of the Union of the United States. The medical and educational policies of these institutions are vested in the School of Medicine. The administration of the departments within the hospital are the responsibility of the Chairmen of the corresponding departments of the School of Medicine.

In training properly qualified applicants for the practice of Medicine, Loyola University School of Medicine strives to retain the intellectual atmosphere that is contributive to the preservation of faith and morals by remaining dominantly Catholic in spirit. Personal attention is given by the faculty to students in regard to their scholarship, character, habits of work, rest and recreation.

The curriculum is designed to realize the objectives of the School of Medicine in conformity with the latest trends in Medical education. The program of studies attempts to provide an undergraduate plan of instruction which will insure the highest measure of clinical contacts and so fit the student for the general practice of Medicine. At the same time it is sufficiently specialized to enable properly qualified students to lay the foundation for practice in Medical specialties.

The Dean of the School of Medicine is Dr. Louis David Moorhead, M.S., M.D., K.S.G., who is one of the foremost surgeons in the middle west. Dr. Moorhead is an outstanding Catholic layman, whose services to the Catholic ideals of medical education have brought him Papal knighthood and a decoration from the King of Italy.

The activities at the School of Medicine are largely restricted to technical fields. The three honorary fraternities, the Moorhead Surgical Seminar, the Volini Medical Society, and Lambda Rho, spend most of their time as a group in hearing papers on various fields.

The school is not without its social events. Both major fraternities have several dances throughout the year, which are well attended as are also the all-University dances sponsored by the Union.

The School of Medicine places special emphasis on close contact between the faculty and the students. With such exhibits as the cross sectional slides (picture two) and the model demonstrations (pictures one and three) in conjunction with instruction, the student has every opportunity to learn.

School of Law

WILLIAM DILLON

first Dean of the School of Law who served from 1908 until 1915

The School of Law enjoys the distinction of being the first of many successful professional schools to become attached to the University. In 1908 the Alumni of Old Saint Ignatius College fostered the founding of the Lincoln College of Law. Shortly afterwards the school was accepted as an integral portion of Loyola University.

The first Dean of the Law School was the late William Dillon, a graduate of Catholic University and King's Inn, Dublin, and the Middle Temple, London. He continued as Dean till 1915 when he retired to private practice.

Under Dean McMahon, who held the administrative power from 1915 till 1925, the Law School inaugurated a three-year day division and a four-year evening division course of study. This is the same course that is offered today.

The law school curriculum is subject to three divisions: contract, non-contract and property law. The first year student is introduced to the study of common law pleading, criminal law, real and personal property, torts and contract law. From matriculation to graduation the student follows a rigorous schedule that becomes more and more specialized.

Contrary to popular belief, the Law School does not have for its aim the preparation of students for the bar examination in the student's particular state. Instead of this the student has outlined for him at the inception of his course of study a plan by which he will learn the nature and fundamentals of the law the inference being that if he concludes his studies successfully, he will be in a position to pass the bar examinations of the several states. One of the bases of this plan is the common knowledge that the field of law is not a static one but rather one that is constantly changing and growing. The student must prepare for the tremendous amount of research that will be demanded of him after he leaves the classroom for good. So during the years in school he is expected to inform himself concerning the mechanics of using the various digests and annotated series that go to form the backlog of the school's library.

To aid him in becoming thoroughly conversant with these important steps, students are handed definite library assignments and are encouraged to compete among themselves in mock court trials. The purpose here of course is to give to all a foretaste of what will make up his life after graduation. So a thorough knowledge of the library and a deft facility with legal bibliographies is considered by the faculty as mandatory to the proper pursuance of the study of law.

At the present time the School of Law grants either a Bachelor of Laws degree, or a Doctor of Jurisprudence. The Bachelor degree demands less pre-legal training but consists of the same courses as the Doctor of Jurisprudence.

School of Commerce

THOMAS REEDY

first Dean of the School of Commerce was appointed to the post in 1924

Realizing the need of providing courses to study business conditions and methods, the School of Commerce was founded in 1924. Since that time it has steadily increased in size and prestige until now it has gained a notable reputation throughout this section.

A Bachelor of Science in Commerce degree is offered by this department, which requires two years of preparatory work, followed by two more years of specialized study. Besides these courses leading to a college degree, extensive classes are held in preparation for the Certified Public Accountant Examinations. The reputation for this course is well known in the Middle West and was climaxed when Russell W. Laxon, a graduate, won highest honors in the State of Illinois Examinations, having his paper chosen as the best in the United States. The degree of Master of Business Administration is also awarded on completing the fifth year of study.

In 1935 the Commerce School was split up into two divisions, the original remaining on the downtown campus, and a new branch being formed in the Lake Shore division. Now students may enjoy all the ordinary atmosphere of college life on the Arts Campus and yet pursue a business curriculum.

Each individual school has its own activities. In the downtown school the main organization is the Sigma Lambda Beta fraternity. This provides occasional programs of interest and has an active roster of graduates as well as the students themselves. On the Arts and Science campus, the activities run somewhat differently and consist of the Finance Club under Mr. Foy and the Economic Seminar under Dr. Mogilnitsky. Both hold periodic meetings and discuss current developments in the business world.

New courses are continually being added to the curriculum to keep the standards of this school high in the esteem of business educators. The faculty is also undergoing constant revision, for just this year Mr. George Lane, one of the oldest members of the faculty was transferred to the North Side School to teach business law.

University College

FATHER JOHN J. MATHERY, S. J. former president of Loyola University, in whose administration the University College was established in 1914

Since going to night school seems to be a modern adventure in education, it will be surprising to know that Loyola's University College has been in existence since 1914.

It was established for the convenience of those who are not able to attend class during the day, but who are willing to sacrifice part of their evenings for education. In this way they are not neglected because of their handicap and may continue in their pursuit of learning.

This branch of the University offers a curriculum leading to the baccalaureate degrees. The members of the faculty teaching in this division of the University are, with but a few exceptions, also teaching on the North Side campus. Apart from this, it functions as a separate group, having its own dean, Father Egan. Moreover, this school operates under a different semestral system, in that the year consists of three quarters, which is equivalent to three semesters work. In this way more material is covered and in a more concentrated fashion.

Due to the busy life of its students, the University College does not have the great diversity of activities which the Lake Shore Campus has. The Loyola Service Guild is a social organization which sponsors lectures and gives parties for the benefit of the poor. The Della Strada Sodality provides the students with a spiritual environment and climaxes its activities in an annual retreat. The Alumnae Association of the College yearly takes means to enlarge its scholarship fund.

West Baden

THE REVEREND ALLAN P. FARRELL, S.J.
first Dean of West Baden College was appointed in 1931

West Baden College, once the world famed West-Baden Springs Hotel, is the philosophical seminary of the Chicago Province of the Society of Jesus. It is academically a unit of Loyola University. Here the young men engaged in the long course of Jesuit training preparatory to their future work in education and the sacred ministry devote three years to a uniquely thorough course of philosophy.

Philosophy is the major intellectual diet of the young Jesuits at West Baden. Further cultural and scientific studies also contribute, however, to a thorough preparation for the varied duties of the Jesuit. History, English, Latin and Greek, Mathematics, Economics, Pedagogy, Sacred Oratory, and a course in the Natural Sciences from the viewpoint of contact with philosophy thus find place in the curriculum offered.

The energy and varied interests of the young clerics has led during the year to many further activities of an academic nature. Chief among these is the Sodality. Aimed specifically at future work in directing Sodality activity, the West Baden unit devoted itself throughout the scholastic year to study and practice in five major fields. The Literature Group dealt with the problems of directing a successful study unit in Catholic literature for high school boys. Knowledge of the missions through fact and story was the interesting object of the Mission Group's endeavor.

Catholic journalism was studied from various angles by the Fourth Estate, which also began this year to provide a weekly column of Catholic information and comment called "Talking It Over" in the local paper and in that of a neighboring town. The Social Action unit studied the Pope's plans for social reconstruction, while the Catholic Evidence Guild section busied itself with various forms of round-table discussion, informal dialogue, map talks, and narration of experience with non-Catholics in its efforts to equip its members with essential Catholic facts and the most interesting ways of presenting them to persons spiritually less fortunate.

Dramatics, with its valuable experience and cultural benefits, also found place in the crowded program of the young Jesuits. On November 24, Mr. Robert Pingstock, S.J., and the cast working under his direction produced Henry IV, Part I, with highly commendable artistic skill. The Shrove Monday play, directed by Mr. Walter Farrell, S.J., was the tensely dramatic Old Wang of Henri Ghéon.

School of Social Work

THE REVEREND FREDERIC SIEDENBURG, S.J.,

first Dean of the School of Social Work

held office from 1914 to 1932

During the past four centuries, the Jesuits have known fame for their zeal in teaching Christian principles to young people who have had to take their places in a world that has sorely needed such principles. With no less zeal have they at Loyola University sought to impart to social workers these same Christian fundamentals without which there can be no adequate service to the needy poor.

In 1914, the late Reverend Frederic Siedenburgh, S.J., organized the Department of Sociology, for the express purpose of introducing into Catholic colleges a sociology founded on Christian principles. Since that time, a separate professional school of social work has developed under the deanship of the Reverend Elmer A. Barton, S. J. In keeping with the Jesuit ideals, it teaches not only the necessary professional theory and practice, but it also imparts the fundamental principles of philosophy and ethics. It is today, one of thirty-eight schools comprising the American Association of Schools of Social Work and is the oldest of the six Catholic schools of its kind in the country.

With the development of governmental programs has come expansion in the public welfare courses. The inclusion of Housing, Health Insurance, and State Action for Children are indicative of the attempt to meet changing needs. The most significant addition of the year was the introduction of a sequence in medical social work under the direction of Miss Aileen McBrien, M.A., at Mercy Hospital.

An innovation in 1939 was the monthly Forum sponsored by the Dean, the Reverend Elmer A. Barton, S.J. An occasion was thus provided for the students and their guests to participate in lively discussions of important welfare topics of the moment. Socialized medicine, unions for professionals, the functions of private agencies, categorical assistance, and merit systems were but a few of the subjects that aroused serious debate.

Under Father Ahearn the hospitals affiliated with Loyola were consolidated into a school with a united curriculum. Under this setup, the educational policy as well as the administrative function is vested in the president of the University. Each school is governed by a council composed of the directress, a regent and two members from the hospital staff. They are supervised by the Administrative Board which consists of the various directresses of the hospitals. Through them comes the policy of the various units to be ratified by the president.

St. Bernard's School of Nursing

In 1903, St. Bernard's Hospital was founded by the Religious Hospitallers of St. Joseph, an order of Canadian Nuns. The School of Nursing offers a complete and intensive course in nursing education. The nurses' residence is one of the best equipped and newest in the city. Provision is made for each nurse to have a private room, completely and attractively furnished. The building contains a chapel, library, spacious auditorium, classrooms, and laboratories of the highest quality.

The spiritual program consists of an annual three day retreat for each class, active participation in the sodality and attendance at lectures and conferences throughout the year.

Socially the nurses participate in quite a variety of activities. The freshman welcome party and the senior ball are probably the two outstanding social affairs. Besides these two, plays, motion pictures, dances, picnics, and sleigh ride parties, fill the nurses' program. The concluding event of the year is the senior picnic at which they are the guests of the Alumnae Association.

St. Elizabeth's

School of Nursing

St. Elizabeth's Hospital was founded in 1886 by the Poor Handmaids of Jesus Christ. In 1914 the nursing school was founded and when, in 1920, the new hospital was erected it became affiliated with the university.

Particular emphasis is placed upon religious activities at St. Elizabeth's. The annual three day retreat is the most important of these, although the coronation of the Blessed Virgin in May, and the singing of Christmas carols are also outstanding events in their religious life.

Socially the nurses also engage in a considerable variety of affairs. The annual initiation of freshmen nurses culminating in the Halloween "weenie" roast, the Christmas party with the presenting of gifts and the singing of carols, and the Senior ball all aid in filling their social calendar.

With the Senior ball, most of the social activities of the year terminate. Graduation is the final step for the seniors; advancement for the underclassmen is their goal. Both of these aims have been brought about by the happy combination of work and play throughout the school year.

Columbus School of Nursing

Founded in 1905 by Blessed Mother Frances Cabrini, Columbus Hospital is not only a medical centre but also possesses a highly accredited nursing school. Maintained by the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart, it provides the regular three-year course in nursing. During this time the student is given both theoretical and practical work in the department of obstetrics, gynecology, medicine, pediatrics, orthopedics, diet therapy and emergency work.

The hospital is fortuitously located across from Lincoln Park. This proximity affords the nurses ample opportunity to indulge in nearby recreational facilities. In the summer there is swimming, picnicking in fall and spring, and ice-skating in the winter.

The Sodality of Mary, because of its religious significance is the most important nursing organization. Under the leadership of the Sodality, the Nurses maintain the annual custom of singing Christmas carols on the eve of the feast, and the distributing of holly to the patients. The coronation of the Blessed Virgin in May is the most beautiful event of the year.

St. Anne's

School of Nursing

St. Anne's Hospital, originally organized as an auxiliary to St. Elizabeth's Hospital to care for tuberculosis patients, was chartered as a separate unit in 1908. The nursing school was opened in 1913.

This year has seen a new superintendent of nurses, Sister M. Willia who took office July 16, 1939. This year Sister Willia organized a Parent-Nurses association which has already been successful; one of their recent purchases for the nurses has been a sixteen millimeter movie projector equipped with sound. An orchestra was also organized this year by Miss Lindsay, assistant superintendent.

The Senior class held their annual dance at the Morrison in November and a Skirt and Sweater Hop at Columbus Park Hall before Lent. The Junior class also held their social affairs including a Hallowe'en party at the school and a "Professional Swing" at the Colonial Club in Oak Park.

The preliminary class were raised to the dignity of Freshmen at the capping ceremonies on December 21 after which all classes were entertained at a Christmas party sponsored by the Parent-Nurses Association.

Oak Park

School of Nursing

In 1917 the Oak Park School of Nursing under the direction of the Sisters of Misericorde became affiliated with Loyola and in 1933 it became one of its nursing units.

The round of activities at the school is well organized and quite complete. In September the new group of twenty-five pre-clinical students entertained the upper classmen and graduates at a traditional evening gathering. The October dance proved to be a successful affair both financially and socially.

In December the Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. John Conway presented an operetta followed by the Dramatic Club's presentation of a Christmas Play. The Christmas party itself and the singing of carols, both traditional activities closed the year.

The three day retreat in March conducted by the Reverend Henry J. Walsh was an important spiritual function. The final school dance was given by the Seniors on April 1st, and the social climax of the year was attained by the University's Senior Ball held in May.

The St. Francis School of Nursing is the northernmost of the Loyola affiliated units. It has a bed capacity of 320 and is attended by a medical staff of seventy-six members and a visiting staff of about fifty other doctors. The Nurses' Residence has a spacious lounge and reception rooms, together with a solarium on each floor. The educational unit consists of a large lecture room, demonstration room, and laboratories for dietetics and the biological sciences.

The social activities are varied with each group holding its own significant and memorable events. The Freshmen are welcomed at an outdoor party in September. The capping and candle lighting ceremony takes place four months after their admission to the school. The Junior and Senior groups hold a number of parties throughout the year, but the crowning social effort is the annual spring formal which is in effect a farewell gesture of the seniors to their fellow students and their school. The spiritual exercises consist of an annual retreat, membership in the Sodality and the crowning of the Blessed Virgin by a student selected May Queen.

SISTER M. GERTRUDIS, R.N.
Directress of the St. Francis School of Nursing.

Careful preparation of all antiseptics is one of the first duties which a student nurse must learn.

Dissecting cats in biology provides the nurses with a knowledge of vertebrate anatomy.

Preparing meals comes primarily under the head of nursing education and more particularly under the head of dietetics.

An ample supply of sterile bandages must always be on hand so a few nurses are always assigned the duty of helping prepare them.

Keeping reports on the progress of the patients to assist the doctor's daily diagnosis is extremely important.

Theoretic anatomy classes are part of the regular curriculum leading to the Registered Nurse degree.

The nurses also eat occasionally; this picture was snapped of two of them receiving their trays.

Prayer and religious instruction is an integral part of the curriculum in the Loyola University School of Nursing.

David F. Bremner of the class of 1891 is one of the school's outstanding graduates. He is president of the Bremner Biscuit Company and is also a member of Loyola's Administrative Council.

Loyola's Pride for Seventy Years

Upon no other foundation than its graduates does the true reputation of any University depend. Loyola University can be no exception to this rule and as a consequence it looks to those men who are working in all the varied fields of activity in the world to reflect credit upon their teachers. From the first graduate of Saint Ignatius College, almost seventy years ago, to the present class of 1940, there have been many who reflected only good. They have proved a credit to their Catholic training holding high the ideals in which they have been instructed. It is to produce this type of Catholic leadership that Loyola exists. That it has produced such leadership is her justification of existence.

Loyola's graduates have been leaders. Many well-known men have been the products of the Jesuit training either at old Saint Ignatius or at the present university. They have fulfilled that function for which the Jesuits have ever striven, namely: providing the modern world with Catholic leadership. But yet these outstanding leaders are necessarily but a fraction of the army of graduates. It is to that great majority of men and women who have founded Catholic homes, who have maintained the Catholic ideal by their example, that Loyola has looked and will continue to look as the exemplars of its purpose. The great leaders lack a certain reality that lessens the effect of their example; those who lead the daily life of the ordinary man have far greater opportunities to aid in the personal sanctification of their neighbors.

This volume has been dedicated throughout to those Jesuits who have been concerned with the founding of the various schools of the University or who have by their efforts given an impetus to some branch of school activities. But their work means absolutely nothing without the cooperation of those whom they have instructed. The cavalcade of Catholic youth which reaches back through seventy years of Chicago's history are the crucial test of Jesuit training; they are the ones who will try in the fires of the world the temper of their education. That some will fall by the wayside is regrettable but not unexpected; but that most will remain true to the ideals which have been inculcated in them—that is not only desired but it is positively necessary. No wonder that at the bottom of the "Loyolan's Code of Honor" are placed these words, "Loyola's greatest pride must be her graduates."

Within but a few short weeks after the publication of this volume the Seniors whose names are listed in the succeeding pages will join that ever-increasing army of Loyola alumni. For most of them it turns the last page on one of the major chapters of their life. From this point on, they enter other spheres of influence of which their long period of preparation has been in anticipation. A school is but an artificial world at best, but it does reproduce in a mimic way many of the difficulties which the graduate will later face in a more stern reality. Most of the campus leaders will continue their career of leadership into later life.

It is to the Seniors that the lot falls of guiding the destinies of the student body through that form of student government which has been set up. The head of the Loyola Union is faced with this problem and for this reason this position is the most responsible and honored elective office in the university. Emanuel Wilhelm, Medical School Senior, has discharged his duties as Union head throughout the year creditably and successfully. Fred L. Brandstrader, as President of the Bar Association, had the direction of the Law School's governing body in his charge. Martin O'Shaughnessy has been faced with the task of coordinating the activities of the Student Council of the Lake Shore Campus.

The heads of the Senior Classes on the various campuses are men who have been considered by their fellow classmates as having executive ability, and an active interest in the welfare of the school and of their class. They not only represent their class in the councils of the student governing body but they also assume additional responsibility for the success of the various social functions which their class undertakes. On the Arts Campus this year the Senior Class was headed by John Devaney who capably fulfilled the requirements of his office, while Edward Galapeaux at the Medical School was chosen by his classmates to represent them. The Presidency of Blue Key was held by John O'Connor of the Law School.

If this class continues in the promise it has shown then truly "Loyola's pride will be in her graduates."

Student Honors

In line with the Jesuit plan of studies, the Ratio Studiorum, the College of Arts and Sciences holds annual Honors Convocations. This plan, begun two years ago by the Reverend William A. Finnegan, S.J., Dean of the College, is primarily intended to reward the students who have excelled in their studies. Certificates of merit are presented to them at the Convocation which is attended by the faculty and parents. At the end of the year another Convocation is held, this time to reward those students who have participated in activities sponsored by the school. At this Convocation the much coveted Dean's Keys are awarded to those Seniors whose work in extra-curricular activities has been of such a calibre as to merit special note.

One of the most important student honors is the appointment to the post of a school orator. This honor is merited by the winner of the annual Carter H. Harrison Oratorical Contest. This year the contest was won by Gerard Galante who spoke on "St. Robert Bellarmine." The second place position was merited by Edward Corboy of the University College.

The Faculty and Seniors in academic robes file in for the Honors Convocation.

Father Pearl awards an Honor Certificate to Harold Frey.

Mr. Thomas Byrne, judge of the Harrison Oratorical Contest, congratulates the winner, Gerard Galante.

★ Organizations

To the Reverend James J. Mertz, S.J., the student body owes an inestimable debt of gratitude for his untiring efforts to build for them a chapel. The clubs and fraternities of the University have endeavored to repay in some measure their debt of gratitude to him, and in recognition of his services to the student body we have dedicated this section to Father Mertz.

Loyola Union

The Loyola Union, made up of all registered students of the University, is governed by the Union Board of Governors. Theoretically the Governors are elected by their classmates to represent them for three years, but more often than not, the Board members are appointed by the Deans of the various branches of the University.

Once each month, thirty-four representatives to the Union meet to bring student opinion to the campus heads, and integrate the far-flung Loyola schools.

The Union sponsors many social events, the first of which is properly termed the Pow Wow. The alumni gymnasium was packed on this occasion, but not at the succeeding Fall Frolic. The annual Senior Ball, biggest of all Loyola Formals, had not occurred when the Annual went to press.

Besides regulating the sale of class rings, the Union worked out a satisfactory financial plan. A political football for nine years, the officers devised a plan, whereby the Union would become self-supporting.

Officers were: Emanuel Wilhelm, Medical Senior, President; Harry Courtney, Law Junior, Vice-President; Emilie Kruppa, University College Senior, Secretary; and Martin O'Shaughnessy, Arts Senior, Treasurer. The Rev. Edward F. Maher, S.J., guided the group through an active and constructive year in his capacity of faculty moderator.

The Loyola Union was well directed by two capable executives, the Rev. Edward F. Maher, S.J., and Emanuel Wilhelm.

Martin O'Shaughnessy, active, inspiring leader of the Arts Council, is already an outstanding figure in Loyola history.

Arts Student Council

Ideal college life was brought to every Loyola student this year by the Arts Student Council under the leadership and inspiration of President Martin E. O'Shaughnessy, Arts Senior.

The council promised bonfires and the students got one as part of many rallies. The council initiated a non-profit book exchange, and cooperated with the Green Circle in the first annual "Loyalty Week." John Devaney, Arts Senior Class President, took a step forward in separate class activity by starting payment of class dues each semester. The council purchased Loyola's first official mascot, a young Minnesota wolf. The group maintained many traditional practices, notably dances and support of varsity athletics.

Students were given an opportunity to participate in the affairs of the University through the establishment of an auxiliary council. Another change initiated by O'Shaughnessy was a reorganization of the council to give more equal representation to underclassmen whose representatives formerly had only half a vote.

Front Row—Gibbons, Bremer, O'Shaughnessy M., O'Shaughnessy F., Lyons.

Second Row—Johnson, Devaney, Boland, Wallace, Tursich.

This was the second year of existence for the Loyola Bar Association, the new consolidated form of student government in the Law School, in which the major extra-curricular activities are managed through committees, the members of which meet together and constitute the board of managers. The new constitution, ratified last year by the student body, was followed as closely as possible with gratifying results.

The latter part of October saw a Welcome Freshman party at the LaSalle Hotel at which approximately one hundred students of the day and night divisions congregated socially and exchanged views on various and sundry topics. Short talks by Dean Fitzgerald, Father Noonan, and several members of the faculty, plus an appearance by each of the student activity leaders to explain and introduce the different forms of endeavor to the new men, preceded refreshments and general fraternizing.

Seventy-one men were enrolled in the Illinois Junior Bar Association by a committee headed by John Brennan, Night Law junior. Monthly editions of the Bar Journal and a membership card entitling the holder to all the privileges of the Bar Association went to each man.

The success of the Mothers' Club this year speaks for the exceptional presidential ability of Mrs. August Hummert.

As each year passes, the Mothers' Club increases in importance and loyalty. Founded primarily to bring the mothers into a closer relationship with the University and to raise the scholarship fund at Loyola, it has done much to realize these aims under the unselfish and capable leadership of its president, Mrs. A. J. Hummert.

Monthly parties were sponsored by the mothers of the various classes. Mrs. Birren, Mrs. Delano, Mrs. Conway, and Mrs. Sossong were the chairmen of the Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior Classes respectively. At these meetings, lectures and short talks were given by members of the faculty. To mention but one, the Rev. Ralph A. Gallagher, S.J., was invited and spoke on "Your Sons."

The annual Christmas Party was a huge success. It received the cooperation of the Mothers of the various classes, the Loyola University Glee Club and John "Santa Claus" Devaney.

The mothers' club combined with the fathers' club in presenting the outstanding event of the year. It was the second annual Scholarship Fund Party and was held at the Stevens Hotel. The proceeds from the party were turned over to the Rev. William Finnegan, S.J., Dean of the College of Arts and Science, and Moderator of the club. It was a fitting climax to a year filled with busy activity and many thanks are due the mothers for their earnest work in behalf of the University.

The Mothers' Club

The Fathers' Club

In 1936, on the North Shore Campus, the Loyola University Fathers' Club was formed as an outgrowth of the Dads' day dinners. The club intends that the Fathers derive some of the same benefits from the University as their sons, and understand the student duties of their sons more fully.

The Dads started the year with the Fathers-Sons Faculty Smoker on September 27. Next on the calendar was the annual event of the Alumni-Varsity Basketball game, which was played on December 9. It was an exceptional game this year because of the play of members of the teams of '30' and '39.' Many All-American basketball players studded the roster of the Alumni.

The club continued quietly until April 4 of 1940 when the Fathers-Sons Banquet was held at the Knickerbocker Hotel. On this occasion the Fathers indicated their interest in Varsity athletics by awarding trophies to the members of the basketball squad.

Then, as the crowning achievement of a successful year, the Fathers, in cooperation with the Mothers' Club, sponsored the annual Scholarship Fund Card Party and Dance. This was held at the Stevens Hotel on May 10.

Mr. Andrew C. Sossong, as President, and the Rev. James J. Mahoney, S.J., Moderator, merit recognition for their service to the group. The other worthy officers were: Mr. August J. Hummert, Vice-president; Mr. George Farrell, Secretary; Mr. Charles J. Graham, Treasurer.

The Fathers' Club enjoyed a successful year under the leadership of Mr. Andrew Sossong.

Vincent Marzano is probably the most active Pre-Medical Senior, and this year he devoted a large share of his time to the Biology Club.

Biology Seminar

The Biology Seminar, composed solely of students interested in biology, is one of the most active organizations on the Lake Shore Campus. It has just finished one of its busiest and most productive years.

Much of its success is due to the efforts and leadership of its moderator and chairman of the Biology Department, Dr. Joseph Semrad. Also contributing largely to the success of the club were its officers; Vincent Marzano, president; George Bravos, vice-president; John Fahey, secretary, and John Cilia, treasurer, all Arts Juniors.

The main purpose of the Seminar was to acquaint the student with existing biological phenomena so that he could combine it with his classroom theory into a well-knit and compact program. This was successfully accomplished by means of the meetings which were all conducted on an informal basis and by the lectures delivered by various members of the biology department. Numerous movies were shown and field trips were taken, offering to the student a diversified program and a wide variety of topics. Much valuable aid and many interesting sessions were given by the Rev. Charles Wiedeman, S.J., and Mr. Walter Hudson.

The importance of the work that the Seminar is doing can be understood when it is realized that fully three-fourths of its members will eventually enter medical schools. Thus, the Biology Seminar has done much to augment the student's knowledge of his chosen field.

First Row—Machowski, Blech, Cilia, Marzano, Dr. Semrad, Fahey, Marino, Kernis.

Second Row—Grochowski, Lamney, Palus, Kowalski, Vanikiotis, Ponizo, Siwek, Houlihan, Grant, White, Polka, Bedessen, McCoy, Smid, Kawula.

Rear Row—Narsete, Lenell, Condon, Podgorski, Govostis, Koczur, Slotkowski, Dolchide, Bernardi, Micaletti, Pagano, Saltes.

First Row—O'Connor, McDonald, Musumanni, Brennan, McManamon.

The Chemistry Club was formed to correlate the theory of lecture with the practical applications of the subject in the industrial world.

During class the professor can point to but comparatively few of the vast possibilities in the field, so the Club undertakes indicating others of them. In truth, the Club does more than indicate them, for it arranges field trips to various commercial plants for student tours. Often there are lectures and demonstrations given.

The group started at home by taking up the uses of chemistry throughout the University, itself. This proved a very popular and informative series of lectures which consumed a large part of the program. A movie was brought in, which explained the chemical details in the recent development of color photography. Welding was demonstrated at one of the lectures and the students were given an opportunity to do the work themselves. On the trips the students visited a steel mill, paint factories and sewage disposal plants. The steel mill trip was particularly interesting because it was operating at capacity to produce war materials. The club was successful in enlisting many of the members in a class in glass blowing. Student interest rose as they learned, and ultimately many men were proficient at the art.

The Club was under the direction of President John Tordella, Arts Junior. As a rule students managed the affairs, but when needed the Moderator, Mr. George M. Schmeing, Ph.D., Acting Chairman of the Department of Chemistry, gave all his interest, and help.

John Tordella is as apt and learned in the sciences as any student in the college and was the logical choice for president of the Chemistry Club.

The Classical Club serves to increase the appreciation for and the knowledge of the culture of Greece and Rome among the students of that field and in other fields.

The club met each month usually in the student lounge. In the discussions the members defined the value of the Classics, learned about the social customs of that time, and took up the works of the philosophical sages of that era. They took up classical music and Greek architecture. The mode of teaching Latin among European Universities was explained. An interesting topic was the Roman use of "modern" inventions such as plumbing, etc. The form of life among the ancients, particularly that of Socrates, also created considerable interest.

The club enjoyed the patronage of many faculty members. They were: the Moderator, Mr. John Melchiors, Assistant Professor of Classical Languages; the Rev. James J. Mertz, S.J., Professor and Head of the Department of Classical Languages; the Rev. W. J. Millor, S. J., Professor of Classical Languages, and Mr. D. Herbert Abel, Assistant Professor of Classical Languages. The officers of the Club were: John Felten, Arts Senior, President, and James Slattery, Arts Junior, Secretary.

Some of the students interested in the club were John Lyons, James Cutler, Arthur Fenner, Arts Seniors; Kenneth Hayes, Frank McGarr, Carl Hayden, Charles Lang, Robert Shanahan, and William Ryan, Arts Sophomores, and James Fleming, Arts Freshman.

French Club

The bi-monthly meetings of Le Cercle Français were designed to acquaint the students of the French language with the social, cultural, and intellectual life of that people.

At the regular meetings short talks and papers were offered on the history and tradition of France by means of translations from classic French writers.

At the joint meetings with Les D'Arciennes of Mundelein College the social aspect took the fore. French songs were sung and the atmosphere of French life was increased by an almost exclusive use of French in conversation. A high point of the year was the puppet show, Le Médecin Malgré Sans Lui, given by Les D'Arciennes. Tentative plans were made at that time for the French Clubs of Mundelein and Loyola to form a class in French conversation taught by a faculty member of either school.

The activity of the French Club has done much to instill extra-curricular interest in the French language and French in general. The club's moderator, Dr. LeBlanc, and the officers, Joseph Duffy, President, and Joseph McNeela, secretary-treasurer, both Arts Juniors, did fine work with the club throughout the year. Much of the credit for the popularity of the club must be given to these men. After a busy year of studying French in the classroom and studying it over at Mundelein, the activities of the club culminated in the annual banquet held in a well-known French restaurant.

Joseph Duffy is greatly interested in the French language and obviously is the man to bring the French Clubs of Mundelein and Loyola in closer relation.

Commerce students elected Ray Geimer, president out of respect for his knowledge of and interest in Finance.

Finance Club

The Finance Club established on the Lake Shore Campus, was originated by Mr. Walter A. Foy, Assistant Professor in the Department of Economics, and advisor to the students who major in the subject of Finance.

The club was founded to maintain the Jesuit policy of close union between professor and student. The club met regularly and functioned efficiently during its first year. The bi-monthly meetings in neighborhood restaurants gave men an opportunity to discuss their problems. On these occasions, the program arranged by Ray Geimer, Commerce Senior, included a talk on some phase of finance by one of the students. The club has an unusual tradition whereby the topic of the speech is withheld until delivery.

At one of their meetings, a joint banquet was arranged with the Economic Seminar. At this joint meeting, Mr. Foy lectured on "Mathematical Economics" and Dr. Mogilnitsky presented a counter-lecture on "Orthodox Economists and Their Teachings."

Extremely active in this year's programs were Raymond Geimer, Chairman and Commerce Senior; George Wenskus, Secretary and Commerce Junior; Alexander Burke, Jerome Nерger and Bill Janik, Commerce Seniors. Bill Janik and Jerome Nерger organized the first Finance comprehensive review class. The class met weekly for a period of two months in the Commerce office with Mr. Walter Foy presiding.

Second Row—Schiavone, Johnson, Davlantes, Nelson, Burke, Dillon.

The Economic Seminar, founded on the Lake Shore Campus by Doctor Theodosi Mogilnitsky, Associate Professor of Economics, in 1938, has completed another highly successful year. The Seminar has given the students an opportunity to apply their knowledge of economics to contemporary problems. At each meeting a paper is voluntarily presented by one of the members, and is followed by an open discussion by the group who have been informed of the subject chosen so that they may be prepared.

Moderator of the Seminar again this year was Doctor Mogilnitsky. Student officers were Robert Kuni and Alexander Burke, Commerce seniors and president and secretary respectively. Doctor Mogilnitsky's untiring efforts have been in no small way responsible for the success of the Seminar.

The Seminar opened the year with a dinner at a local hotel at which an outstanding paper "Mathematical Economics" was presented by Mr. Walter A. Foy, Associate Professor of Economics. Other excellent papers delivered during the year were by Alexander Burke, William Barrett, and James T. Fletcher, Commerce Seniors.

Plans have been made and will be presented next year for the Seminar's contribution to the program honoring the quadricentennial of the founding of the Jesuit Order.

The opening and closing functions at a nearby hotel, and the meeting in the Student Lounge throughout the year were arranged by Alexander Burke.

The fact that the Economic Club was one of the most active and successful groups on the campus may be accredited to the excellent handling of it done by President Robert Kuni.

The Robert Bellarmine Philosophy Club, which has for its aim the provision of extra-curricular philosophical discussion for those students with a special interest in the subject, this year speculated on "the concept of end and its application in the various fields of philosophy."

The Rev. John F. McCormick, S.J., Chairman of the Department of Philosophy, continued as moderator of the club; and William Gibbons, Arts Senior, acted in the capacity of president. He was aided by Secretary Edward Riordan, Arts Junior.

Members who presented papers at the bi-monthly meetings were: James Slattery, John Felten, John Lyons, James Cutler, LeRoy Wauck, Eugene Slotkowski, James Hosna, Joseph McNeela, Robert Moorhead, Arthur Fenner, Martin O'Shaughnessy, John Lavezzorio, John Fahey, Gerald Leies, Mariruth Renesch and Lillian Bannahan.

As a part of Mundelein College's celebration of the feast of St. Thomas Aquinas, Gibbons and O'Shaughnessy addressed the annual symposium late in February.

The policy of maintaining one subject throughout the year was suggested by the Rev. James J. Mahoney, S.J., as was the title of the subject. The members unanimously accepted the idea.

Members of the philosophy department, besides Father McCormick and Father Mahoney, who guided the young philosophical minds were: the Rev. Arthur J. Kelly, S.J., the Rev. John J. Wellmuth, S.J., Dr. James O'Neill, and Mr. John D. McKian.

One of the most capable student minds is in the head of William Gibbons who led Bellarmine Philosophy Club.

Robert Bellarmine Philosophy Club

International Relations Club

Recent developments of war and loss of international integrity point to the hungry need for study of International Relations.

The comprehensive comment on international events in all publications furnished abundant material for discussion. Every member was assigned some special phase of the subject to investigate and round table discussion brought out what each had found. In addition, books on Europe and Asia were taken up in the manner of debate with two students holding up each side. Noteworthy among these discussions was one held by Robert Etzkorn, Arts Junior, and John Devaney, Arts Senior, on Edward Benes' book, Democracy, Today and Tomorrow.

The club prevailed upon members of the faculty to expound on the problem. One was the Rev. Joseph Roubik, S.J., Chairman of the Department of History, who spoke on, "The Background of the Present War." Dr. Paul Kiniery, Assistant Dean of the Graduate School, addressed the group on, "The United States in the International Scene." Mr. Zvetina, Professor in the School of Law, related his experiences and impressions derived from a very recent and extended tour of southeastern Europe.

When James Wallace, Arts Junior, John Devaney and Robert Etzkorn attended the Regional Conference of the Catholic Association for International Peace at St. Francis College, Joliet, Illinois, James Wallace was honored with the office of vice-president of the Association.

The officers were: Mr. John Kemp, S.J., Director; Nathaniel Burke, Arts Senior, Chairman; and Robert Etzkorn, Arts Junior, Secretary.

Whoever, whatever, or whenever, it was in history, Nathaniel Burke has a good idea of the "why" of it all, and he transferred this diligence and learning to the members of the International Relations Club.

First Row—Garrity, McCarthy, Mr. Kemp, Moderator.

Second Row—Kennedy, Carlin, Kearns, Hennessy, Hosna, Galante.

Third Row—Wallace, Wallace, Conway, Riordan, Nicoli, Moorhead.

Fourth Row—Burke, Holman, Nicola, Devaney, Speaker, Etzkorn.

The task of building up student spirit and publicity fell to Robert Schultz as President of the Green Circle.

Green Circle

Founded on a principle of creating school spirit and keeping it alive and vigorous at Loyola, the Green Circle is probably one of the most important organizations on the Lake Shore Campus. With its membership open to any student who wishes to promote these ideals, its influence was felt by all.

The Green Circle was always ready to make the student conscious of his alma mater and to convince him that Loyola is truly the "Mother of Men." Informal dances were held almost every other Sunday evening in the student lounge under the auspices of the Green Circle. When the Arts Student Council wanted a bonfire last fall for a pep rally, it was the Green Circle that collected the wood and touched the match to this expression of school spirit. True to Green Circle tradition, this was followed by dancing and refreshments in the lounge. In collaboration with the Arts Council again, the Circle supported the successful first annual "Loyalty Week" complete with its "no-shave-for-a-week" program, its tag day for the benefit of the basketball team and its rallies and celebrations.

Carrying the burden of responsibilities and leadership of the Green Circle for the first semester were: Robert Schultz, president; Bob Bremer, recording secretary; Jim Wallace, treasurer, and Frank O'Shaughnessy, corresponding secretary. For the second semester, James Wallace was elected to the post of president and he was ably assisted by Bob Bremer as secretary, Louis Byrne as treasurer, and Dan Bailey as corresponding secretary.

The greatest undertaking of the Green Circle was its perfect job of ushering at athletic events and other Loyola activities.

Seated—Wallace, Byrne, Matt, Dougherty, Wallace, Schultz, Bremer, O'Shaughnessy, Boland, Bailey, Granhold.
Standing—Koenig, McKeever, Murnighan, Dirksen, Happ, Schiavone, Kuni.

First Row—Hayes, McKeever, O'Shaughnessy, Kepner, Schiavone, Berens, Conroyd, Dirksen, Philbin.

Second Row—Koenig, Graham, A., Koerner, Essig, Cole, Etzkorn, Wallace, J., Bacharz, Wallace, R.

Rear Row—Schell, Graham, Cudill, Lee, Sheehan, Lynch, Burns, Hennessy, Eirich, Kelly.

With the foundation set during the previous year by a group of energetic Arts Sophomores, the University Club started to build under the direction of President Robert Schiavone, Arts Junior.

The club strove to make its members, limited to non-fraternity men, Loyola conscious, and to promote activity in the University affairs.

The Rev. James Hussey, S. J., Student Councillor, accepted the position of Moderator, and Arthur Kogstad, Commerce Senior, was voted honorary membership. Members of the faculty and athletic board were invited to speak at the weekly meetings. Social strides were made on Hallowe'en night when the club held an outstanding dance, the Harvest Hop. This was the first dance which the club sponsored and it attracted a near record crowd in the Alumni gymnasium. On many occasions the members trekked to the Edgewater Beach Hotel en masse. The Intramural team, which at the time the book goes to press is but six points behind the leaders of the Sweepstakes, gave an entertaining athletic carnival in the gymnasium. Following Holy Mass on the first Friday of each month, the club breakfasted at the nearby restaurant. The Club had two initiations during the year, and formal banquets were held after each.

The club must be indebted to its officers for the effective leadership they have given during the year. If the club maintains its present rate of progression, it will attain an enviable position among the University organizations.

Sponsoring dances, Intramural teams, and initiating pledges were some of the many things Robert Schiavone, President of the University Club handled flawlessly.

Interest in and participation in athletics, and support of the Club meant the reward of presidency of the Monogram Club to Gene Dubay.

This year's officers of the Monogram Club set out to put new life and activity into an organization that, for all practical purposes, had ceased to function.

The group attempted to regain its traditional prestige. The first function of the year was to initiate twelve letter-winners from the previous year. On this occasion, the Rev. William Finnegan, S.J., Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, credited the club with the first action in several years. Next came the Monogram party following the Alumni basketball game, which featured pictures of the Loyola-Long Island game for the national intercollegiate title. Many interested Loyolans were able to see the showing of their team in the "Garden."

The club cooperated with the Dean when he secured athletic passes for the Alumni Monogram club members who had graduated within the last three years.

Officers for the year were: Gene Dubay, Arts Senior and President; Bill Barrett, Commerce Senior and Vice-President; Bill Gibbons, Arts Senior and Secretary and Bill Elson, Arts Junior and Treasurer.

The club approached extinction after football was dropped. The candidates were so few that the group could not carry on, until minor-letter men were admitted after 1938. By virtue of this fact, and through the energetic efforts of its officers, the club is regaining lost ground and promises in the future the prestige and honor that once belonged to the members of the club.

★ Athletics

The Reverend William H. Agnew, S.J., was the president of Loyola University when it moved to the Lake Shore Campus and when the Alumni Gym was erected. It was due to his guidance and inspiration that athletics was advanced at Loyola. It is therefore only fitting that we should dedicate this section to a man who has been the greatest single factor in the development of athletics in the University.

INTRAMURAL BOARD

Athletic Board

Loyola's success in the athletic world has been sponsored and authorized by a Board of Control, invested with the executive powers of the athletic department. It was founded four years ago when it was chartered to aid the growing needs of the University.

This year the acting chairman was Father Maher, Dean of Men, who succeeds Father Grace who had been in charge for two years and is now stationed in Detroit. The active members constitute the college coaches and are as follows: Mr. Sachs, the Varsity basketball coach and Director of Athletics; Mr. Wilson, the track and swimming coach; Mr. Heffernan, boxing coach; and Wibs Kautz who is in charge of the Freshman basketball team.

The basketball schedule for the past season was arranged through the efforts of Father Maher and Coach Sachs. It included the great teams from all over the country and is said to have provided the toughest competition that the Ramblers have ever had to face.

Coach Al Wilson's swimming and track teams were the most successful squads on the campus during the past year. The Tankers ended the season with nine wins and one defeat, and brought to a close the best campaign in their history.

The powerful Frosh quintet was developed by our late alumnus "Wibs" Kautz who won all-American fame while playing for three years with the Varsity. Coach Jerry Heffernan spent his time in the boxing ring showing the budding pugilists the tricks of self defense.

Varsity

1939-40 SEASON

By LEONARD D. SACHS

The Loyola team of 1939-40 has completed one of the toughest schedules in the history of Loyola Basketball. Champions of all sections of the country were included. Four of the six teams which competed in the National Championship defeated our Midgets by a few points. Kansas which was a finalist in the Collegiate championship managed to gain a victory over Loyola in the last few minutes.

The Varsity squad lacked height and experience; their spirit was remarkable. They have never conceded victory to an opponent regardless of reputation; the Team improved with each succeeding game; in the last two games of the season, they were a smart polished ball club and able to give all opponents a real game. Practically all of the boys are back next season; Loyola should have another fine year.

I want to take this opportunity to state that despite the season's record in defeat, I am very proud of the 1939-40 team and hope they will carry on with their great "Loyola Spirit."

Basketball

The team this season had only three veterans of the last year championship squad. Captain Wenskus had previously shown ability as a fine defensive man, as a good shot, and as a team leader, and this year he has maintained a constant improvement, under the tutelage of Coach Sachs.

Vinny Graham is a fast, accurate player whose ability at center this year has contributed much to the fighting spirit of the team. With Ed Schell, the other veteran on the regulars, they have been two of the mainstays on this year's team.

Dan Cahill has engaged for the first time this year in tournament play. He originally came to Coach Sach's attention for his fine work in leading his intramural team to victory in the basketball tourney. This year his work at guard has been particularly well done.

The fifth member of the regulars was Ed Lee who won his numerals last year as a frosh basketballer at the forward post. He has developed this year into an excellent player and has two good years ahead of him.

Mickey Rottner who joined the squad at the semester has proved to be one of the most versatile stars on the team. His brilliant playing has done much to spark the team during the latter half of its tough season.

Frank Leahy the only senior on the squad, Jack Crowley, former player for Loyola Academy, Don Burns, previous Quigley basketballer, Augie Durso and Bob Van Heule both from the Academy, saw considerable action throughout the season as substitutes. Without their invaluable aid the squad would have had no strong reserves to fall back upon.

The Season

With graduation last June went the stars of last year's team, Kantz, Novak, O'Brien, Hogan, and Driscoll. This season saw the return of but three veterans, Wenskus, Graham, and Schell, Wenskus the only one who had seen a great deal of active service. With a schedule which included some of the strongest teams in the country, this young and inexperienced team showed an ability far beyond most expectations. True it is that the record of games won and lost is not favorable; but it is more true that Loyola has shown that it has a team greater in some respects,—in their fight, their courage in the face of stiff opposition,—than any other at school in recent years. The team this year deserves great credit for their showing; the student body, in general, merits censure for their poor showing in attendance at the games.

The Ramblers opened their season with a 42-24 victory over the Arkansas Indians. Graham led the scoring in this game with 14 points, while the whole squad saw some service.

The Alumni Game

The next game of the season was the Alumni contest held under the auspices of the Fathers' Club. The Varsity won by an overtime 32-28 score after the Alumni had given a beautiful exhibition of ball handling. Eddie Schell led the scoring for the evening with seventeen points.

On December 15th the Ramblers hung up their third straight victory of the year against Kalamazoo College, defending Michigan Intercollegiate conference champs. Loyola led at the half 25-6 but were pressed very hard in the second half as the Hornets collected twenty-seven points. The final score was 43-33.

The squad opened the double header programs in the Coliseum by losing to the Carnegie Tech Skiboos in a 45 to 36 score. The game was featured by Graham's constant rushing on defense and Wenskus's brilliant floor play.

In a closely fought contest in the Alumni Gym the team lost to Oklahoma A. and M. by a 29 to 24 score. At the end of eight minutes the Ramblers led 5 to 1, and at the half they were still ahead 13 to 12. Successive long shots at the beginning of the second half gave the Aggies a lead which they never relinquished.

Against the Mustangs of Southern Methodist, Loyola lost a close game. Ed Lee and Dan Cahill sparked the Rambler attack in the first half, and the Loyola boys led at the end of that period 22 to 21. Wenskus was Loyola's big gun in the second half, chalking up eight points to bring his total for the evening to twelve. Southern Methodist sank two baskets in quick succession to gain the lead which they never lost.

The Ramblers lost a hard fought game to Rice Institute 55 to 41. Although beaten by fourteen points the team managed to ring up forty themselves, and Wenskus was high scorer with 19 points.

On New Year's night Michigan State won after a closely fought contest by the score of 30 to 22. During the first half it was a nip and tuck battle but after several successive field goals Loyola lost the lead for the evening.

In the second Coliseum game of the season Loyola ran up against the Kansas university eagles. Rated one of the country's leading quintets, the boys from Kansas met an inspired Loyola squad. Paced by Ralph Miller, star center, who made 22 points during the game, the Jayhawks finally overcame the Ramblers' threat by a closing minute rally making the score 40 to 36.

A fast stepping squad from Omaha dealt the squad a 41 to 39 defeat by a bucket made in the last minute of play. Loyola had led through most of the game losing their lead but once.

The next game with Duquesne was even more of a photo finish as Loyola was nosed out at the Coliseum by a 28 to 27 score. Schell was the high scorer for this game with eleven points.

The next two games at the Coliseum also saw scoring disaster for the squad although they performed with brilliant consistency. The Ramblers lost to Manhattan, one of the best in the country, by a 31 to 30 score. The last minutes of play saw the score tied four times until the boys from New York forged a point ahead. Two disastrous free throws which Loyola missed concluded the game leaving the score in favor of Manhattan by one point.

In a closely contested game with Butler, the score was closely matched throughout. The accurate shooting of Butler gave them an eight point lead which the Ramblers could reduce only by four points before the gun, leaving Butler on the long end of a 43 to 39 score.

Although they played a superb brand of defensive ball against De Paul and "hook shot" Wozny, Loyola succumbed 21 to 15 before 8,000 fans in the C.Y.O. charity game. Against a De Paul team which rated one of the best in the country Loyola played on the defensive, holding De Paul to 21 points while at the same time the Ramblers got 15.

The Saint John's Redskins in an Armory game beat the Ramblers 43 to 27 by their accurate shooting and clever play.

The Ramblers broke their losing streak against Illinois college trouncing them by a decisive score of 55 to 37. The Illinois team kept up for the first half but Cahill and Rottner boosted the score to 42-27 before the second period was half over.

In the final game Loyola overcame a strong Beloit five 51 to 28. The game was marked by fast accurate Loyola shooting as well as by clever defensive play which held Beloit to 3 points for the first sixteen minutes of the game.

Freshman Basketball

The one bright star on Loyola's '40 basketball horizon was the Frosh cage quintet. Our greenmen went through a tough schedule undefeated and later teamed up with the varsity to make consistently good showings in several post-season tournaments.

Led by Captain Ed Prim and the high scoring two-point twins, Mickey Rottner and Art Double, the Frosh squad defeated the Chinese All-Stars 46-29, De Paul Frosh 40-38, Wright Junior College 41-38, American College of Physical Education 42-28, and St. Sabina C.Y.O. 34-24. The squad lost Rottner to the varsity just before the Sabina game when he became eligible for inter-collegiate competition.

The team's record in the later tourneys boasts 10 wins to 3 losses. The frosh advanced to the third round of the St. Sabina and Queen of Angels tourneys, won the Irving Park Y.M.C.A. loop, and seem to be well on their way toward swiping the bacon at the Larabee Y. at the time this book is due at press. Rottner, Double, and the boys did not fare so well in the Central A.A.U. set-to in which they got their ears pinned back by Frankie Harmon's Demons 32-22 in the initial round.

The starting quintet was composed of a permutation of the following players: Art Double, Mickey Rottner, Capt. Ed Prim, Mike Dougherty, Bill Durkin, Howie Zednek, Bob Lee, Jack Stanton, John Dwan, Bob Tietz, and Jim Kostol. In other words Coach Wilb Kautz gave every man on the squad a chance to show what he could do under the pressure of game conditions.

Track Season

At the outset of the track season, the thinclads had a noble precedent to uphold, for last year's team had gained national esteem after a series of victories over the outstanding competitors of the nation. However, today it can be said that they have won new laurels for Loyola and that they have successfully preserved its reputation.

The indoor season began on February 10 in a dual meet with North Central college, and closed on March 23 with the Chicago Relays in the International Amphitheater. During the intervening weeks the team won both of the scheduled dual encounters by swamping its opponents with decisive scores. On the remaining open dates, with the relay combinations led by Captain Bill Elson, and the distance events featuring Max Lenover, the team competed five collegiate meets. Each established new records before the season ended.

The Texas Relays in Austin inaugurated the outdoor season which does not end till June 22nd at the National Intercollegiate Meet on the University of Minnesota track in Minneapolis. However, until that time, Loyola will enter the Drake Relays at Des Moines and compete in six other meets throughout the middle west.

WHO'S

Captain Bill Elson has been responsible for many a winning point during his years of competition. As leadoff man of the relay team he has provided it with a winning margin innumerable times. With Bill's graduation this year the track team will suffer an inestimable loss.

Tom Layden completed his third year on the team this season. As captain of the Harriers during the fall season, he led the cross country team through a successful schedule. During the winter and spring he is a regular on the track team where he holds an important position on the relay combinations.

Little Charlie Beauregard shows us that success on the cinders is not restricted to those big lanky fellows, for despite this handicap, "Frenchy" is one of the leading scorers on the team. He piles up points in the distance medley and on the two mile relay squad. In three dual meets he has been undefeated in the half mile run.

Norb Essig is the endurance man of the whole squad, for although this is only his second year he has found that the two mile event is the race for him. Norb also competes with the cross country team in the fall. Considering the promise he has shown in both fields he bids fair to be one of the fastest two milers in Loyola's history.

Art Lancaster has proved to be Loyola's most successful hurdler in recent years. Continual improvement this year has given Alex Wilson great hope that before the season is over Art will repeat his great performances and become a leading scorer on the team.

Max Lenover is Loyola's greatest and most publicized performer. The "Flying Canadian" has broken numerous middle distance records throughout the middle west and remains as a standout on the relay teams. He has piled up more points than anyone else on the whole squad.

Dan Howe divides his time between sprints and work on the relay team. He competes in the 440 and 220 and runs with the one mile combination.

Ed Reidy proved to be an outstanding performer during the outdoor season. It took him a little while to get into shape, but as soon as he had warmed up he began to clip off the mile and half-mile in winning time.

Joe Dougherty, a new recruit from the freshman class with an outstanding record as a high school sprinter, is a member of the mile relay and sprint medley teams.

Emil Mennes occupies an important position on the relay combinations although this is only his first year under Coach Wilson.

Roy McCall showed consistent improvement as the season wore on. He began his achievements at New Trier's championship team, and he now competes in the relays and dashes for the squad.

High jumping has been monopolized by Vinny Graham and George Kiley for the past three years.

Bill Tortorello has taken charge of the pole-vaulting department. His performance has been confined to the outdoors, where he has shown great promise.

Although Rux is taking his courses at the Downtown School, he spends his free time in working out for Wilson; in spite of this handicap he occupies a position on two relay teams.

Bill Watts waited until spring to burn up the track on the half mile and mile run, but his success then was a result of the tedious practice he carried on the year round.

At the Illinois Relays at Champaign, the medley team of Beauregard, Elson, Layden, and Lenover finished second. The mile team ran fourth and Max Lenover climaxed the afternoon with a first in the special 1500 meter open.

In the second dual meet of the season, Loyola trounced Armour Tech by a score of 68-26. First places were captured in all the events except in the pole vault and shot put.

The thinclads were squeezed out of third place by a margin of one and a half points in the Midwest Conference Meet. Captain Bill Elson took the mile in 0:52.3 and Lenover took second in the mile event after a costly fall. Lancaster and Beauregard were the other scorers for Loyola.

On March 9, Max Lenover broke the Central Collegiate Conference mile record by running the distance in 4:15.8. The previous mark had been established by Greg Rice of Notre Dame in 1937. Layden who was handicapped with bronchitis, and Art Lancaster failed to finish in the money.

As spring approached the more important meets were scheduled. At the Armour Relays in the University of Chicago fieldhouse, Loyola's relay teams piled up twenty-six points to finish in third place. The medley combination of Elson, Dougherty, McCall, and Lenover headed the group into first place. Rux, Beauregard, Layden, and Lenover placed third in the two mile event; Dougherty, Memmes, Howe, and Elson ended up in the same spot in the mile relay. In both the high and low hurdles,

the Season

Art Lancaster stepped high and fast to finish fourth in both events.

With a ten yard lead established by Bill Elson, the rest of the mile relay team of Beauregard, Memmes, and Lenover retained the margin and broke the tape in 2.3 seconds faster than the Chicago Relay Record. On the same night in the Amphitheatre, Lenover was third in the 1,000 yard run behind Borican, the world's record holder and Kane of Indiana. The Chicago relays marked the end of the indoor season with new records for the Loyola track team.

The Maroon and Gold first glittered outdoors in the Texas Relays in Austin. This was the second consecutive year that Loyola was invited to compete in this annual classic. This was the longest trip that any athletic team made during the school year. After a thousand mile journey the team entered in the sprint medley and half-mile relay. They took fourth place in the college medley division.

The Drake Relays at Des Moines, Iowa on April 26th and 27th was the next major attraction. Following this was the Central Collegiate Conference on June 7th. There were four other meets during the remainder of the season.

This past year marks another step in the recognition of the track team which has been Alex Wilson's major aim. Wilsonmen this year have earned recognition from schools that had formerly looked upon Loyola merely as a practice team. Loyola was invited to take part in various relays that are gaining considerable popularity in the west and south.

The eleven men who composed Loyola's great swimming team this season have hung up a record of nine wins and one loss which will stand for a good many years before it is bettered.

Marty O'Shaughnessy has co-captained this year's team and has also turned in one of his best seasons. As backstroke artist he won the second berth on scoring honors and was a member of the medley team which set a new pool record. Marty has hung up the amazing record of forty-three straight meets for Loyola.

The other co-captain, Al Burke, is also swimming for his fourth year in Varsity competition. He has been a mainstay in the breaststroke division as well as in the underwater event. Al set a new mark for the pool in the underwater swim going three full lengths of the pool without breaking the surface.

High point man on the squad for the second successive season the sensational sophomore Bob Carroll was one of the major contributing causes to the mermen's brilliant season. His record of one hundred points for the season was not only almost a quarter of the total team's score but it was also one of the highest scores ever made in the swimming team's history.

Tied with Captain O'Shaughnessy for second place in scoring honors is the diving star and free style artist, Ray Dougherty. In three years of competition Ray has been a dependable and able point gatherer. He has consistently taken the diving event in Loyola meets and his assistance in the free style division is invaluable.

Warren Matt, styled "the blonde torpedo" has upheld the breaststroke department for three years. Before coming to the university he had never engaged in competition but under the tutelage of Al Wilson he soon developed into a sensation. This year he amassed forty-nine points and broke the pool record at Larry Marley, frosh artist in the free style section, has done well this season as his record of forty-seven points testifies. He has been groomed this season to take the place of Max Shapiro, former flash, who was lost to the squad last season through graduation.

Bob McKeever is another three year veteran who has done his work in the free style department. This has been his best year to date under the direction of Coach Wilson. He has also been paced this year by Bob O'Connor a freshman from the Academy. This friendly competition between the two has improved their time considerably.

Bob O'Connor has already shown considerable promise of becoming one of the swimming team's mainstays. He has improved considerably this year and if he continues to improve his work will be quite notable.

Ebby Corboy is the elongated gentleman who swims the backstroke. He holds the record for the 100 yard event for Loyola which he established last year. Since Ebby is in attendance at the Downtown School this year, it has meant considerable effort and sacrifice for him to show up at practices and meets.

Warren McNeil in the free style and Bill Sisson in the breaststroke departments have been of value to the squad not only in their contributions of scoring points but also as reserves. They have been useful in complementing the medley teams and filling out the events. Sisson has set a new record of 4:31 for the 300 yard backstroke which has stood for this season.

Shattered for the third straight year was the team scoring record. Al Wilson's boys garnered a grand total of 451 points over the season as compared to the previous high of 385, set last year, and 366, set two years ago. The Ramblers averaged over forty-five points per meet in their ten meets.

The Season

The high powered Rambler swimming team, launched by Coach Wilson in the second week of January against Armour Tech, turned out to be the best squad of its kind in Loyola's history. It blazed through the season with nine wins and one defeat. For the third successive year the scoring record was shattered; this time it was boosted 66 points to establish a new high of 451.

After a few practice meets, the mermen clashed with Armour Tech to start the season a'rollin', and trounced them with the decisive score of 51-15. In the strange surroundings of the Institute the freshmen swimmers gained valuable experience in inter-collegiate competition which proved so necessary for the tougher opponents ahead. Ray Dougherty of Loyola finished with individual honors, followed closely by Armour's captain, Ray Dodge.

On the following day the team journeyed to Milwaukee, to take revenge over the State Teachers. This meet marked the first win over the Teachers in four straight years, and it was only the second meet lost by Milwaukee in five years. After the final event Loyola finished with a ten point margin having 38 points, to their opponents total of 28.

Despite the examinations during the last week in January, the taukars accounted for their third and fourth victories of the season. North Central was the third victim by a score of 42-33. Only five on the opposing team were responsible for the 33 points, led by the individual star of the evening, Harold Henning who came through with three first places. In winning the meet Warren Matt established a new breaststroke mark at the Naperville fieldhouse. The 200 yard free-style relay combination also set a new record of 1:43.5 in their event.

Since the swimming team had most of its meets scheduled for over the week-ends, they took the next train for Peoria to polish off Bradley Tech for their fourth victory on the following eve. Here they seemed to have little opposition with the exception of one man, George Davis, who finished with 13 points to his credit. Loyola's high scorers were led by Bob Carroll with two firsts, and then came O'Shaughnessy, Matt, Dougherty, and Marley.

To prove that they were out for a championship season, the mermen scored two more overwhelming decisions over Chicago Teachers College and George Williams. By now the "freshies," along with their experienced brethren, were beginning to take things serious. For although the team continued to win by long margins they became responsible for numerous points. Due to this fact, Alex Wilson was accused of developing a dream team that would go undefeated.

But during the following week their high hopes were shattered on a fateful Friday night down in Greencastle, Indiana, where a strong Hoosier squad from De Pauw University nosed them out by two scant points. It was a wild evening from the start of the first event. Records were consistently broken by both teams, and although Loyola gained four firsts, their antagonists finished with a two point lead.

Although somewhat disheartened after their first defeat of the year, the Ramblers went out and swamped George Williams mercilessly to the tune of 49-26. Loyola took six firsts and four seconds in the individual events. The sensational sophomore, Bob Carroll, again led the scoring spree. Warren Matt won his third successive breaststroke event and Bob McKeever, who had been steadily improving, won the 220 yard free style. This was the seventh victory of the eight starts.

With the idea still in their mind of taking revenge for that lone defeat, they again pushed over North Central in the home pool, in tuning up for their crucial engagement with Kentucky during the following week. Loyola's speed stars continued to break their home records, and captured five firsts and five seconds to put everything on ice.

Kentucky's dry dock champs were the next guests of the mermen, and they sought their third victory. But this final meet ended in a blaze of glory for the spirited Ramblers; for while the largest throng of the year clung from the balcony with anxious eyes. Loyola's spirited squad defeated their rivals, 35-33. Co-captains Al Burke and Marty O'Shaughnessy in the last meet of their careers, finished in record times. Bob Carroll brought his total of the season's points up to the hundred mark, to become the highest scorer of the year. Matt and McKeever won their individual events, along with the record breaking relay team. Loyola's greatest season was at an end.

were completed St. Michael's was generally conceded to be the team with the best chance to dethrone the champions. They played up to expectations for they led throughout the final game until the last minute when Central Catholic eked out a victory. The game pitted the two outstanding players of the tourney, John Hiller of St. Michael, and Captain Stanczak of Central Catholic, against each other.

Central Catholic nearly stumbled over St. Philip, runner-up for the Chicago High School title, in the quarterfinals as the 33-31 score indicates. St. Michael qualified for the final round by defeating the Indians from St. Francis Mission, South Dakota, who had played their eighteen game schedule without a defeat. Leo gave them their second straight defeat to win third place honors.

The teams qualified for the tournament by their records or by the titles they held. Eight city and state champions were entered. There were three regional champions, one regional runner-up and one diocesan champion.

Cross Country

While losing but one meet throughout the season the Loyola Cross Country team won second place in the state competition, and Lenover, the blazing Canadian, won the individual state title.

The squad including Captain Tom Layden, Max Lenover, Ed Riedy, Norb Essig, Chuck Beauregard and Bill Watts, opened the season with a 28-28 tie against Eastern Illinois Teachers. Although Lenover again won top honors, the team lost to Milwaukee State Teachers, 27-30. Essig ran third and Layden fifth.

Early in November the nations best came to the Loyola Invitational. It was a year ago after this race that Lenover collapsed, but this year he was strong enough to finish third behind Walter Mehl, Captain of Wisconsin University, and Marion Cole, Captain of the Illinois State Normal team. Mehl, who finished in 17:43, set a new record for the meet, and took one second from the record which Greg Rice set the year before. The Badgers had the lowest score in the meet with 27 points, while Illinois State Normal had 54, Milwaukee State Teachers College, 68, and Loyola University, 83.

Lenover rounds the bend well in advance in the Naperville cross country meet.

Lenover won the Illinois Intercollegiate Conference meet held at Charleston, Illinois over a 3.53 mile course in the time, 19:33. The race for first place was a dual battle between Lenover and Cole. Max tells that they passed each other any number of times during the race, but Cole did try to take a big lead. Max knowing that Cole has never been able to finish strong, waited, and beat him decisively in the final sprint.

The start of the Naperville cross country meet.

Tennis

Mr. John Kemp, S.J., new coach of varsity tennis, will depend on three veterans, Captain Bill Janik, Hank Scofield and Gene Dubay, when the team plays what Manager Barney Beresky says, "is the toughest schedule in Loyola tennis history."

The fact that the squad has opponents like Western State, Marquette, Kalamazoo, Northwestern, and Michigan State, whose players are the best in the Middle West prove the statement of the manager. The squad also plays home and home matches against North Central, Armour, Lake Forest, and Beloit.

In rounding out the team Mr. Kemp can pick from Bob West, Alex Trohdahl, Jim Marzano, Charlie Goodwillie, Ed Grens, Bill Juvancie, Bill Joyce, Ray Kennedy, Bud Birren, Jim Orphan and Bill Legner.

The team practice began indoors early in March and found the squad playing on a court laid out in the gym, and at north and south side armories. Weather will not permit outside play before the matches which begin as early as April 13. The team plans some practice sessions on the clay courts of the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

tain, George O'Connell and Tibor Beresky. Janik has spent recent summers in tournament competition against exceptional players and has improved from his valuable experience.

Hank Scofield, Freshman star during last season, promises to be the outstanding player in Loyola tennis history. Scofield led the team in the number one position last year. His showing during summer tournaments gives certain indication that he will become a Loyola great.

Gene Dubay goes into his final year with the record of winning the most matches on the squads of '37 and '38. His showing as a Junior was not as exceptional, but with the early practice for this season he hopes to return to previous form.

Gene Dubay, (left) four year veteran of the team, is one of the top ranking players.

Hank Scofield, one of the best players Loyola has had, is an important member of this year's squad.

Bill McEnery putts one across the green.

At the time of this writing the varsity golf team is still a somewhat unknown quantity, due to the loss of three out of four members of last year's great team. The only returning regular this year is Bill McEnery who played at number four last year.

Bob Blake, an alternate last year, is back and has the duties of both manager and acting captain to fulfill. The team is augmented by the services of Tom Waldron, who also gained experience last year as an alternate.

Golf

The greater part of the team material will be drawn from those who starred in the Intramural tournament last fall. Among the men who will be relied upon heavily are Dave Delano, winner of the fall tournament, and Bill Sheehan, runner-up.

Inclement spring weather has thus far hampered greatly the spring practice sessions, but consistent low scores by McEnery, Sheehan, Waldron, Blake, Delano and George Geis, a freshman, has indicated that Loyola shall place a consistent, low-scoring foursome on the fairways this season.

Home matches will be played this year at Pickwick Country Club, scene of the fall intramural tournament.

A well rounded schedule has been drawn up by the manager which includes such opponents as Armour Tech, Wright College, St. Ambrose College, the Alumni, Grinnell and Coe Colleges.

Sheehan, Kane, Waldron, Delano, and Blake are among the members of this year's golf team.

Marty O'Shaughnessy, head of the Intramural Board.

The Bennies, star freshman team, were winners of the touchball I-M games.

Bob Kuni competed in the pool tourney in the I-M sweepstakes.

This year saw perhaps the most successful season in intramurals since the time that program was first inaugurated at Loyola. The I-M Board this year continued its drive for a more extensive inclusion of the student body in intramural competition, and according to present statistics, admirably succeeded.

The University Club's entry, the Dodgers, was considered a strong pre-season favorite, but the keenness of competition this year afforded by the freshman outfits upset all calculations, and at press time, the points have been so distributed that the Alpha Delts have a very handy lead that the Dodgers can hardly hope to surmount.

The frosh first displayed their upsetting tendencies in the Fall Relays when the Bennies spiked the Dodger guns at the outset of the Sweepstakes race. In doing so, the Bennies broke several team records for the Relays, and amassed 37 points to the second place Dodgers' 32.

The same outfit went on to sweep through the frosh touchball circuit and then took the senior champs, the Dodgers again, by the insulting score of 24-0.

The Delts began to move up with a close victory over the Pi Alphas in the I-M swimming meet held early in December. Five intramural paddlers rang up nine individual points in this meet: Bill Gibbons, George McClellan, Bob O'Connor, Larry Marley, and Al Watson.

The Delts and the Dodgers staged a dog fight for three months while they fought for the I-M basketball title. After playing smooth ball throughout the season, the Dodgers blew up in the crucial title tilt before the onslaught of the Delts, sparked by Graydon and Wendt, and dropped the senior title to the Delts. Meanwhile, the frosh league was furnishing a counterpart of the senior battle in the Friars-Hoboes tooth and nail struggle. The Friars outclassed and outshot the Hoboes to clinch the title in the final game of the junior loop.

The Friars and Delts met in a playoff to decide the Arts Campus crown, and the Delts shaded the frosh outfit by six points, 23-17.

The I-M season reached its peak with the most successful Carnival of Champions yet held. The Carnival, held on April 12th, saw the crowning of the champions of five tournaments.

Bill Smurdon and Jim Marzano of the Pi Alphas met one another for the handball crown, and Smurdon copped the trophy in a gruelling three game match. Meanwhile, the Delts were taking the all-University basketball championship from the Phi Chi's of the Med school, and running away with the novelty events.

The Delts registered two more victories in the pool and bowling tourney finals when Jack Crowley and Bob Ahern came through to score wins.

Another freshman darkhorse appeared in the ping-pong tourney where Jack Smith, unattached, slashed his way through a record field, and conquered Jim Houlihan of the Phi Mu's in the finals held the night of the Carnival.

There are still a few tournaments to be run off which cannot be included in this book. The golf tourney will be held in the early part of May; the tennis tournament, halted by inclement weather in Fall, will be resumed, and the Spring Relays, softball, and handball tournaments will decide the Sweepstakes champions. At the time of printing, the Delts seem to have clinched the title, but there is still possibility of an upset.

Ross Littig, director of the channel swim, congratulates Larry Marley upon completion of the five mile course.

The tip-up in the sophomore, junior interclass basketball game.

Intramural Directors

This year the Intramural Board achieved singular success in pursuance of its plan to provide a more extensive, more variegated program of intra-school sports competition. At the time of printing, although few of the tournaments have been completed thus far, the board managers have announced the tournament entries this year have far surpassed the number who engaged in the Intramural program in the past years.

The performance of the board has been enhanced in the past few years by the adoption of selective system of managerial advancement. This year's board has been most effective in the operation of its extensive program for that very reason. The system provides for selection of three sophomore managers from the several freshman managers. The selection is made on the basis of individual application during the intramural season. Following this line, two junior managers are chosen from the three sophomore managers, and from these two is chosen the senior manager. The position of senior manager entails full responsibility for the board's performance; the senior manager is awarded a full scholarship and a major monogram in recognition of his work during his assistantships and his new responsibility.

The general control of the Board this year was in the hands of senior manager, Martin O'Shaughnessy. Departing from strict observance of the system above outlined, three junior managers were in service this year. Three candidates stood out, none of whom could be rejected in view of their excellent co-operation as freshman and sophomore managers. Therefore, Robert Schiavone, Bernard Kiley, and Bruce Berens assisted O'Shaughnessy this year in the capacity of junior managers. Ross Littig, Dan Conroyd, and John Sheahan filled the positions of sophomore managers, and Bill Keefe, Pat Romano, James Kiley, James Pitaro, and Dick Carter served as freshman assistants.

One very important step taken this year was a compilation of the I-M records of the past decade. With only scattered records and News stories to work from, senior manager, Martin O'Shaughnessy has brought records completely up to date. The records have been mimeographed and supplied to every team and every agency which may have cause to use them.

The Reverend William A. Finnegan, S.J., Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, has encouraged activities among the students in order to aid them in the development of their character and initiative. It is because of his interest in these activities and because of the support and assistance he has given them that we have dedicated this section to him.

Sodality of Our Lady

LAKE SHORE BRANCH

All activity centers around religion, the fount of all inspiration and recourse, from which campus social life and education derives a true purpose and a full meaning. Religion has always been the backbone of a Catholic university and unless it governed our every action of the day there would be no reason for establishing Catholic colleges and universities and there would be no place for Catholics in this world. But when students make religion an integral part of their varied lives and put into practise the truths they have learned concerning their faith it is nothing more than the natural action of an interested and conscientious group of Catholics. It is really the action of Catholics or—Catholic Action.

Thus it has always been at Loyola. Catholic Action, for the greater part through the Sodality of Our Lady, has been foremost in all activities as the active profession of a lively faith which is very near and sacred to the hearts of the Loyola sodalists. The Sodality on the Lake Shore Campus has given to the student body that vivifying principle that makes Loyola University the university that it is—a Catholic university.

With the end in view of removing the chill from the so-called cold facts of religion and presenting it more informally, and, above all, of enhancing the workings of the Sodality so that all Loyolans might become Sodalists the program for the year was altered. Under the direction of Mr. John A. Kemp, S.J., Moderator, and Paul Hummert, Prefect, the Sodality began this year with a program that was initiated and approved by all the students.

In September a meeting was held of some twenty outstanding personalities in the various campus circles who were asked to consider the difficulties of the students and to present a plan that would meet with the needs of all. The program which was presented and accepted divided the Sodality into seven distinct groups.

The "M" Club, a religious and devotional group under the direction of John Devaney, was one of these units. The "M" Club took charge of the plans of the Sodality for the Quadricentennial Anniversary of the Society of Jesus, conducted the highly successful May devotions, and served and ushered at the student weekly mass.

James Cutler was appointed head of the Candle Club, an organization for those who have shown promise in literary fields and those who merely are interested in and appreciate good literature. The group is indebted to John Lyons who did excellent work in reviewing Catholic literature and non-Catholic literature alike for the group.

Due to the efforts of Arthur Fenner, Tannery has proved to be one of the most outstanding organizations on the campus. Its increasing popularity is perhaps due to the intense interest of the students in problems that are common to all college men or because of the clear honest solutions offered by Father James T. Hussey, S.J., moderator. Meeting very informally any and all subjects and difficulties are brought up and a reasonably practical solution is guaranteed. Membership is small and has been limited by the consent of the members.

The Xavier Club, the mission unit of the Sodality, through the leadership of Carl Hayden has enjoyed excellent cooperation from the students in the work of gathering funds for the missions and developed a real interest in the work of the missionaries. This year Loyola led the province colleges in contributions to the missions.

Madonna Della Strada University College Sodality

The Della Strada Womens' Sodality of the University College had a very fine year. The members met every other month for Mass, Communion, Sodality recital, instruction, breakfast, and business meeting on the Lake Shore Campus. In the alternate months the office, benediction, and tea on Sunday afternoon constituted the meetings. On Passion Sunday, a Day of Recollection under Father Millor was held in the University Chapel of the Arts Campus. The mission Unit gathered in the University College on the second Tuesday of each month and prepared many articles for the missions. The collections of magazines for hospitals reached a new high this year.

In charge of the Sodality in a capacity of moderator and responsible for the organized and varied program was the Rev. Thomas A. Egan, S.J., Dean of the University College. The officers of the Sodality were: Mary Connors, President; Mary Breen, Vice-President; Alice Haues, Secretary; Emiline Schumacher, Treasurer, and Delphine Healy, Chairman, Mission Section.

WEST BADEN BRANCH

At West Baden the Sodality is the most important extra-curricular activity. Aimed specifically at future work in directing Sodality activity, the West Baden unit devoted itself throughout the scholastic year to study and practice in five major fields. A special feature of Sodality work were the general meetings of the whole body. On these occasions, one of the five groups would present an original program to illustrate its peculiar field of study. The Evidence Guild staged a dramatic re-enactment of the famous "Monkey Trial" of 1925, adapted to the extent of having an Evidence Guild man come to the platform and present Catholic answers to Clarence Darrow's cynical questions which proved too much for fundamentalist William Jennings Bryan. The Literature Group dramatized Father Lord's pamphlet, "The Successful Failure." The Fourth Estate group simulated a dinner discussion by several famous Catholic writers to explain their views on the progress of Catholic journalism. The mission group offered a "Flying Carpet" feature in which the audience was brought in imagination from one mission station to another in Patna, India.

Board of Publications

Loyola publications maintain an enviable consistency in contrast to the output of many "modern" schools, whose journalism depends on sensational matter. The men who are responsible for the high standards are the members of the Board of Publications.

This board supervises the three student publications, the Loyolan, the Loyola Quarterly, and the Loyola News. The Chairman of the Board is Dr. Morton D. Zabel, and he also supervises as Moderator of the Loyolan and the Loyola Quarterly. Mr. Mark Guerin is Moderator of The Loyola News. Other members of the Board are: the Reverend Eugene Shiels, S.J., Mr. Julius Kuhnka, and Mr. James J. Young.

The exceptional talents of this group serve to balance the inexperience of the students who are in charge of the publications. They are conscientious in organizing plans, inspecting contracts, and checking copy. These duties cover the development of the entire publication and demand the energy and attention of these men throughout the year. They are willing to put forth the tedious labor which these duties demand because of interest in the University and in this particular field.

Full credit can be given to the Board for the consistent excellence of the Loyola publications. Though at times the staff may bridle at the necessity of control, they really appreciate the necessity and value of the Board's restraining hand.

The Loyola News Banquet held at the end of the semester is the occasion for the appointment of the new editor as well as to honor the retiring men.

1940 Loyolan

To commemorate the Quadricentennial of the Society of Jesus and the 70th anniversary of Loyola University as the 1940 Loyolan is designed to do is a superlative task. The staff hopes the job is fittingly done, and the editor demands that the credit be given to the staff.

One who contributed to the book in his work, worry and loss of sleep is the Managing Editor, Harold Frey. There are seemingly an infinite number of details to be taken care of, and Frey was able to carry them all. His position was well filled.

Jim Conway had charge of the senior section carrying the pictures of over four hundred Loyola graduates. Conway had to correspond with all of them, place posters in all of the schools, represent the staff in the studio, and last but not least, set up the section with the pictures and copy for these graduates. Conway was the first to finish his section.

The sophomore who was head and shoulders above all the others in that year and answers completely to the adjectives, dependable and capable, is Edgar Martin, Photography Editor. Only a rough estimate is possible of how many pictures he had charge of, but we do not exaggerate to place it at a thousand. Ed sacrificed a great deal of his time and energy both during class hours and out of class hours to do his job. It could not have been done better.

Next in line for honors is another sophomore, Ed Landgren. There are many more pictures in this book than we would have been able to pay for were it not for the saving which Ed made for us in his developing and enlarging work. His thorough knowledge of photography, helped immeasurably when he was taking pictures, and he merited the position of Head of Photography.

Eugene Dubay as editor in chief has had the full measure of responsibility for the success or failure of the Loyolan. The ideas, layouts, and general appearance of the book are directly due to his selections.

The duties of a managing editor are somewhat undefined but nonetheless real. Harold Frey has concerned himself chiefly with working on the dummy, checking on editors for copy, identifications, and pictures.

It is to these men that the Loyolan is indebted for making it an accurate pictorial representation of Loyola life. John Gannon, Frank Derby, and Charlie Flynn took care of the downtown school, while Ed Landgren took most of the pictures on the Lake Shore Campus.

Edgar Martin, the photography editor, has capably performed his difficult job of editing the pictures as well as engaging in considerable photographic activity himself.

Every Editor worries about some section which may get behind schedule. The kind of a man to have in that predicament is Justin McCarthy, Organizations Editor. Organizations had fallen by the wayside when we called on McCarthy to pull us out of the hole. He stepped in and made appointments for group pictures of the clubs in record time. He then besieged the heads of the clubs for facts on their group to insure accuracy in the copy.

Previous editors of the yearbook could tell you how much trouble copy can become. There was a minimum of trouble this year when it was handled by Andrew Dussel. The activities including West Baden Groups, University College groups, and the usual number of Arts and Science functions were cared for by the Activities Editor, Gene Powers. The unusual opening of the book demanded art work from the staff artist, Joe Condon. The Loyolan costs money, and Bill Janik, Business Manager of the Commerce school meticulously handled the expenses, thereby making savings that added to the book.

The work of arranging for group pictures of the fraternities, and pictures also of the presidents fell to Charles Ewerts, the Fraternity Editor. Sports copy and pictures absorbed the time of Warren Matt who was the Editor of the Sports section.

The complications which arrive from having several divisions of the University throughout the city are handled by the representatives at the other campus. John Gannon is the representative at the University College. Gannon's sincere, earnest work was certainly an important factor in the book, and he represents a large number of the students whom this book includes. They couldn't have been represented any better.

James Conway has been responsible for the Senior section while Andy Dassel has had the arduous task of editing copy.

Warren Matt has handled the difficult sports section with the able assistance of Warren Clobisy. Bill Janik has kept the Loyolan accounts as business manager.

Justin McCarthy has secured the club appointments and stories, while Gene Powers and Charles Everts have had the same responsibility in the activity and fraternity section respectively.

John Condon has kept the staff informed of Medical School happenings as well as identifying all the pictures from that division. His brother Joe has been responsible for most of the art work in the opening section.

The Condon family contributes two men who hold staff positions on the book, the second being John Condon, Medical School representative. John had to arrange appointments, identify faculty, students and fraternities which the medical school contributes. The representation at the Law School was handled by Frank Derby. The Law School gave unqualified cooperation in their portion and it must be attributable to the work by Derby.

In addition to this number of men who held staff positions, there was also a great number who performed as assistants. In view of the number of details they cleared one can appreciate their importance. The staff of this edition is larger than any other Loyolan, and it is a good thing. This large number of assistants was always available and willing to chase to the different places throughout the city to handle the work. After the pictures were taken it was the assistants who were called upon for the tedious task of identification. They had to live up to the assignment of being exact in spelling of these names, and we feel certain that the identification of photographs will be as correct as human fallibility will allow.

The Loyola News

William Gibbons, retiring editor of the News, has put out a paper whose prime objective has been to foster school spirit.

Arthur Kogstad, managing editor of the publication, has been an industrious and dependable worker. His column "In the Headlines" has been one of the more interesting features in the paper.

Seniors Devaney and Boland give freshman reporters Smith and Dolehide some pointers on writing news copy.

Commended by moderator Mark Guerin in his Honors Day speech as "the finest editor the Loyola News has ever had," William Gibbons opened the second half of his term last September with the resolution to foster and nourish a genuine school spirit, "a feeling of pride that we are Loyola men," as he stated in his inaugural editorial. This became the paper's major policy for the remainder of his year.

Gibbons and his managing editor, Arthur Kogstad, worked methodically with an excellent staff to establish the News firmly as an all-University organ. The fifteenth birthday of the publication on December 15th brought out a parallel between its original purpose and its present status. In 1924, Edmond Richer, William Schoen, John Sweeney, Ambrose Kelly, and Harold Hillenbrand published four mimeographed pages of ordinary notebook paper size. In it they stated:

"The interested parties responsible for the Loyola News believe that they are performing a service in the interest of the entire University. There has long existed a need of more frequent communication between the student bodies of the various departments. In this is contained the paramount purpose of the News. To unify the whole University into a common body is the chief objective. Despite the modest appearance of this effort, the project of a greater paper is held forth."

Although the editor felt the loss of the invaluable former editors, Norbert Hruby and Thomas Shields, he began his year with an experienced staff.

Kogstad in addition to his duties as managing editor conducted "In the Headlines" a column devoted to events of special student interest. Seniors Martin O'Shaughnessy, Daniel Murphy, and John Devaney, with positions as executive editors, acted as an advisory body. Devaney also maintained the humorous tradition of "Ho-Hum" disguised as the now famous "Herman." Associate editors Eugene Dubay, James Cutler, and John Lyons kept the News informed of happenings on the Loyolan and Quarterly. The latter wrote informal essays in his column "The Billboard" which was considered by many to be one of the best features of the paper. Richard Boland saw to the smooth running of the business end of the publication in his capacity of business manager.

The four outstanding Juniors on the staff, Robert Wallace, Robert Koenig, Timothy Dillon, and Joseph McNeela headed their departments with considerable journalistic ability. Wallace issued assignments as news editor; Koenig covered the sports front; Dillon handled the news on the fraternities and clubs; and McNeela ran an efficient circulation department.

Some of the mainstays of the News staff. Seated—Smith, Devaney, O'Shaughnessy, Kogstad, and Boland; Standing—Dillon, Littig, Wallace, and Boland.

Former sports editor and his assistant, Robert Koenig has been promoted to the post of managing editor while Ross Littig has advanced to the position of sports editor.

Campus representatives who were an integral part of Gibbon's unification program were Maurice Murphy, Medical School; Frank Kuoll, the Day Law School; Kenneth Dedekind, the Dental School; Emilie Kruppa, University College; and Katherine Reardon, Social Work. Miss Reardon covered activities in the School of Social Work campus in her "Social-Lites" column.

At the yearly staff banquet in February, Robert Wallace was appointed editor-in-chief to succeed

News

Gibbons. Robert Koenig was named as Kogstad's successor in the post of managing editor.

Wallace's staff consisted of Joseph McNeela as news editor, Ross Littig, sports editor, James Fox, fraternity editor, Charles Beauregard, business manager and John Ruddy, circulation manager.

Soon after Gibbon's appointment last year, he revived the stagger-type headline which had been in vogue during the editorship of James Quinn. This headline has a streamline effect, and was maintained, for the most part, by Wallace, who occasionally reverted to a flush left headline. Seeing the need for the inclusion of more names in the News, Gibbons installed a "Who's Here" column which became the "Campus Broadcasting System" under the direction of Frank Considine. Another change made by Gibbons was the reduction of a full-sized fraternity page to the column form "Fraternity Row." This style was continued by Wallace. A needed improvement in the sports section was "I-M Talkin'," a column devoted exclusively to events in the intramural athletic world conducted by Bruce Berens.

"Pinky" Byrne, Frank O'Shaughnessy, Jack Ruddy, Jim Wallace, and Ray Kennedy are some of the News' most dependable feature writers.

Joe McNeela, news editor, and Ed Landgren, staff photographer contributed considerably to the interest of the front page.

Marty O'Shaughnessy, executive editor, and Timothy Dillon, fraternity editor during the first semester.

Frank Considine, popular freshman columnist, and James Fox, fraternity editor.

Dan Howe, Len Happ, Edward Miller, James Fletcher, and Andrew Dussell all reporters for the News.

Richard Boland and Charles Beauregard, business managers during the first and second semesters, respectively.

Among other features of particular interest to the students was the series of articles contributed by Dr. Le Blanc on "Church and State." The exchange column, with interesting stories quoted from the newspapers of other schools, proved to be one of the more popular features also. The series of faculty pen portraits enabled the students to become better acquainted with their teachers.

One of the interesting surveys conducted this year by the News was an inquiry into what constituted the Loyola boys' ideal girl. The girls from Mundelein retaliated in the next issue by describing their ideal man, which they added was not to be found at Loyola at the present time. The feature section of the copy on the News contributed several other articles of like nature which enlivened student interest considerably.

The Loyola Quarterly

James Cutler, as editor of the Quarterly, has maintained the tradition set by former editors in upholding the literary excellence and distinction of the magazine.

James Gill, managing editor, has carried on the business end of the Quarterly with capability. James Hosua has been a frequent contributor of articles dealing particularly with subjects of musical interest.

Both Arthur Fenner and John Felten have contributed prolifically to the Quarterly throughout their college career. This year Fenner handled the Book Review Corner and has provided an interesting number of reviews each issue.

Oldest and most distinguished of the Loyola publications is the literary magazine, the Loyola Quarterly. During the thirty-seven years it has been published, the Quarterly has reached a very high level among college magazines, and this year the quality has been maintained by the Editor, James Cutler, Arts Senior. Devoted to the writings of students and faculty, the magazine has long attracted the attention of a wide and discriminating audience.

This year saw the publication of several outstanding pieces of work, especially along creative lines. Robert Weiter Daly, Graduate Student contributed another of his fine short stories, "Ave atque Vale," and the Autumn issue presented some excellent translations from the Medieval Latin by Clare Rooney, also a Graduate Student. Poetry was represented by the work of Norbert Hruby, Graduate Student in English, and John Lyons, Arts Senior and former editor of the Quarterly. Mr. Hruby's poem was "The General Rows by Moonlight," a psychological study of Benedict Arnold, and Mr. Lyons presented "Roderic of Urbino," a dramatic monologue.

Of the critical articles submitted, the most interesting were a series pro and con James Hilton. "Goodbye, Mr. Hilton," by Harold Frey, John Lyons, former editor of the Quarterly, has been for four years one of the major factors in making it a publication of excellence.

Arts Junior, started the series in the Winter issue, and in the Spring issue Henry Marciniak rushed to the aid of the beleaguered author with "Hello, Mr. Hilton." And then, to finish things off, Arthur Fenner, Arts Senior, tried to reconcile the combatants and patch the various holes in their arguments. Mark A. Finan, S.J., of West Baden, contributed an extremely lucid and diverting study of the difficult matter of objective evidence and its place in Scholastic Philosophy, and Norbert Hruby in "Credo" presented his views on the matter of Expressionistic technique in the modern theatre.

In the Spring issue two of the Loyola entries in the Bremner Intercollegiate Essay contest appeared, those by James Ostler, which won second place, and by John Lyons. James Ostler, the Editor, was the author of an interesting study of the much-perplexed question of the character of Hamlet.

The Book-Shelf this year continued its policy of reviewing the latest books of interest under the direction of Arthur Fenner. With its new format, developed last year under the editorship of John Lyons, and the variety and excellence of its material, the Loyola Quarterly of 1940 was a magazine of which any university might be proud.

William Joyce and John Ruddy, assistant editors, have helped the publication throughout the year in a business capacity.

Harold Frey and Charles Everts have contributed several articles during the year chiefly on subjects of literary interest.

MARIO SALVADOR
Director of the Orchestra

To inculcate an interest in music among the students of the University and to provide an outlet for those who are interested in singing or playing musical instruments, the musical organizations have been founded.

The musical groups of the University are the Lake Shore Campus Glee Club, the University College Women's Choir, and the orchestra. This year West Baden College has also developed a thirteen-piece orchestra to supplement their Glee Club. All Chicago musical activities are under the direction of Mr. Graciano Salvador.

The orchestra under the direction of Mario Salvador has had a fairly successful year making one public appearance this year. They played at the Christmas assembly and proved to be quite popular, particularly in their rendition of Ravel's Bolero.

The Glee Club is one of the more active campus groups. This year it has resumed its custom of giving public concerts at various churches and clubs in response to their invitations. During Lent it sang appropriate songs and hymns of the season at St. Gertrude's, St. Catherine's, and St. Matthew's churches. This year one of the special numbers in their repertoire was the Sacred Cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," which has as its theme the Passion of Christ.

The Club also assisted with the massed Glee Clubs of Catholic High Schools and Universities in the public reception of Archbishop Stritch. They have also been contemplating an outdoor concert on the school grounds. A benefit concert for the Chapel was held on April 14th which met with approval from the student body and enabled the group to make a considerable donation to the Chapel fund.

The orchestra rehearses for one of its annual concerts.

The orchestra and glee club record the school songs for use at pep meetings.

The mainstays of the Glee Club this year include Joe Duffy, Norbert Essig, Leonard Pawlikowski, Noel Lenihan, Joseph Tursich, John Dorgan, Joseph Heraty, Ralph Viglione, James Ostler, Casimir Bacharz, Walter Kawula. The president of the organization was Claytus Nelson, who also held this position last year.

Besides their special concerts the Club has performed their usual function of singing at the student Masses throughout the year. They have made the student body more cognizant of the beauty and power of music and the solemnity and devotion of the Mass. They have likewise contributed their services as entertainment for the Mothers' Club Parties.

A vote of thanks is due Mr. Graciano Salvador for his capable and artistic direction of the musical organizations during the past year. He has kept the tradition of good music alive at Loyola.

Mario Salvador has contributed his services as organist to various school functions including the several Honors Convocations.

BERT G. WALKER
Director of The Curtain Guild

The Curtain Guild

The Curtain Guild is a student organization which exists for the purpose of producing plays. The director is Mr. Bert G. Walker and the faculty moderator the Reverend Edward V. Carrigan, S.J.

This year the group was extremely fortunate in its choice of a play, Father Malachy's Miracle, and equally as fortunate in its selection of a cast. The play by Bruce Marshall concerned the efforts of a humble Benedictine monk, played by Richard Kiley, to bring belief into a pagan world by means of a miracle. He succeeds in working the miracle, moving a dance hall twenty miles, but is greeted with incredulity and sneers on all sides. The situation becomes such that he is prompted to perform another miracle and move the dance hall back to its original location, providing a successful and comical denouement.

With such a play as this, the casting required characters which are able to bring out the full comedy of the dialogue and situation. Paul Hummert, president of the Guild, who played the role of the straightlaced Canon, William Joyce, his curate, Charles Flynn who took the part of the Bishop, and Michael Esposito, the Cardinal sent from Rome, brought out the full flavor of the clerical parts. Carl Hayden, the Anglican cleric, Andrew Gillespie, the Bishop's bad brother, and Peter, the tipsy Irish servant played by James Marzano took care of the major supporting roles with unusual effectiveness. Agnes Stroth as Peggy McNab, Betty Stroth as the dance hall girl, and Jane Stack as the Canon's housekeeper provided the roster of girls in the play. Other members of the cast were Hartney, Gill, Smith, Wallace, Sossong, Dirksen, Clark, Goessling, and Frey, all of whom played their minor parts with considerable distinction.

The ingenue and the vampire in the play were, quite surprisingly, really sisters. Even Loyola has its sister act.

"Don't act your age" is the motto of the players as exemplified in the way the makeup man is adding fifty years to Dick Kiley's age.

"Don't wave that dirty cigar under my nose," shrieks Annie to the backstage villain. Jim Marzano as Peter seems to be frightfully bored and frightfully worried.

Varsity Debate

The Varsity debating team again enjoyed another very successful season under the capable tutelage of Mr. Fred L. Brandstrader, moderator of the team and a faculty member of the department of speech. As always this extra curricular activity found favor among many upperclassmen as they debated the Pi Kappa Delta question: "Resolved; that the United States should maintain a strict policy of military and economic isolation towards all belligerents engaged in armed international or civil conflict outside of the western hemisphere." The immediate need for a practical solution of this problem on the part of the American people made for an extremely vital and pertinent discussion not only on the part of the debaters but also by their audience at each debate.

Beginning in early November with a series of intra-team debates and later engaging in a number of intercollegiate contests with various teams representing schools in the Chicagoland district, the team prepared for the more important inter-regional and tournament debates. This preparation preceded the regular debate season which began after the Christmas holidays.

Members of the Varsity Debating team are: Hayden, Wienke, Barrett, Ewerts, Ryan, Kogstad, McGarr, Mr. Brandstrader, Gallagher, Shanahan, Fletcher, Dillon, Devaney, Hosna, Galante.

Gerard Galante defends his side of the case while his partner, Frank McGarr and William Bryar listen intently to the case presented by their fair opponents in the Marquette University debate.

After the semester examinations teams representing colleges and universities from all parts of the United States visited Loyola in their forensic travels. A novel audience feature was introduced by Arthur Kogstad. It consisted of presenting debates before the various social fraternities of the campus and awarding a plaque to the fraternity having the largest attendance.

Teams chosen from the abler forensic-minded members of the Varsity squad were chosen to travel to the annual Northwest debate tournament held at St. Thomas College in St. Paul, Minnesota. Accompanied by Mr. Brandstrader, the four men from Loyola who participated in the tournament were Frank McGarr, William Ryan, Charles Ewerts, and William Barrett.

As a compensation for four years of debating, a long trip was awarded to three outstanding seniors, Arthur Kogstad, manager of the debate team, John Devaney and James Fletcher. The team left on Easter Sunday for a ten day tour of the South and the Southeast, visiting schools who had sent representatives earlier in the year for debates at Loyola. Among the colleges visited were the University of Florida at Gainesville, Spring Hill, Florida College for Women, Loyola University of New Orleans, and St. Louis University. While on the return trip home, they stopped at Culver-Stockton College at Canton, Missouri. The highlight of the trip was their stay at Knoxville, Tennessee where they attended the national convention of Pi Kappa Delta. Membership in this coveted fraternity was awarded to Loyola at this meeting. The importance of membership in this organization cannot be overlooked when it is realized that Pi Kappa Delta is a virtual dictator of debating activities in almost all the large colleges and universities in the United States.

ARTHUR KOGSTAD
Manager of the Varsity Debate Team.

Frank McGarr and William Ryan, members of the Varsity Debate squad, ably defend their case against the debaters from St. Louis University.

In addition to the regularly scheduled debate trips, members of the team gave a series of exhibition debates before such audiences as the Knights of Columbus, Holy Name Society, Catholic girls' High Schools, and various other Catholic organizations.

The quality of the debating as in the past maintained a high degree of excellence. Under the student leadership of Arthur Kogstad, the executive side of the debate program was handled with an unusual display of efficiency. Although missing such men as Jim Quinn, Peter Conway, and Ed Marciniak, the debating society made a splendid showing throughout the year. Valuable men to be lost this year through graduation are Arthur Kogstad, John Devaney, James Fletcher, Robert Kuni, William Barrett, and Richard Wienke.

Another notable feature which carries with it an anticipated value was the infusion of new blood into the organization by the inclusion of several sophomore debaters. Ordinarily, this would not be permitted but these men made such enviable records as members of the junior organization, the Cudahy

Forum, that they were extended the privilege of membership in the upperclass organization.

Members of the Varsity Debate squad who have made at least five intercollegiate debates as well as having shown a consistent quality in debating have been admitted as the first members of the Loyola Chapter of the national debate fraternity, Pi Kappa Delta. Included in this group are Arthur Kogstad, John Devaney, James Fletcher, William Barrett, Joseph Gallagher, Gerard Galante, winner of the Harrison Oratorical Contest in 1940, Frank McGarr, Charles Everts, William Ryan, and Carl Hayden. Membership in this organization awarded to these men reveals indirectly the outstanding success which the Varsity debating team has added to its previous laurels.

Well known debating organizations that visited Loyola during the past year included such schools as, St. Olaf's College, St. Thomas College, Niagara University, Omaha University, John Carroll University, Quiney College, and Northwestern University. As usual, the squad held a home-and-home series with Mundelein College.

The Cudahy Forum

The Cudahy Forum, Loyola's undergraduate debating society, is now concluding one of its most successful seasons. With an initial turnout of some twenty interested students, the first meetings showed that the Forum numbered no small group of experienced debaters among its members.

An initial series of intra-forum debates prepared the speakers for the exhibition debate presented before high school audiences throughout the city.

For the aspiring debaters, the high tide of the year came during the months of January and February when delegations from the Forum took part in three debate tournaments at North Park College, Northwestern University, and Huntingdon College, respectively. The speakers taking part in these tourneys were: LeRoy Gudgeon, Ted Layden, John Clifford, Charles Padden, James Ostler, James Hartney, John O'Brien, and John Bettenbender. The two delegates to the Northwestern tournament were Richard Huston and Robert Covington together with LeRoy Gudgeon and William Watts.

This year the Forum won nine out of twenty-four debates at the Huntington Tournament. Last year the Forum won five out of six but this year they entered the class A competition. The remaining debates of the season are a series with Fox Secretarial College. As the season approaches its close, the members look back on a most enjoyable year and anticipate possible activity on the Varsity squad next year.

Hartney, Gudgeon, Bettenbender, and Clifford were four very active members of the Cudahy Forum.

Brandeis Competition

The Brandeis Competition was created by Dean John C. Fitzgerald in 1933. It represents the outstanding activity of the law student apart from his classroom work and library research. The competition encourages student initiative and acquaints the student with the proper procedure in the practice of the legal profession. Participants must be thoroughly familiar with legal bibliographies and the preparation of trial and appellate briefs.

First year students are organized into clubs which remain intact during their remaining years in school. Club members gain their initial experience in arguments within the club, later moving to inter-club competition. In the senior year the groups of clubs have been cut down to two and the winners of the final arguments are the entrants into the Interscholastic Moot Court Trials for the state championship. Practicing attorneys and judges preside at all cases and arguments between the clubs. Their decision is based on excellence of briefs and oral arguments.

Mr. Thomas Waldron of the Law School was the judge and supervisor of the Competition.

The final arguments this year were concerned with the problem of recession for mistake. Fred Lucas Brandstrader and Joseph Carroll of the night school emerged victorious over the day school team of Leo Newhouse and Dan Abrams. The Hon. John M. O'Connor of the Appellate Court presided and was assisted by Hon. Hugo M. Friend and Hon. John V. McCormick.

The second year Brandeis men met the University of Chicago in a special home and home series, and the first year men had a series of four intra-school arguments. The entire Brandeis competition is under the direct supervision of Mr. John A. Waldron.

Carroll, Brandstrader, Abrams, and Newhouse were the finalists in the Law School's Brandeis Competition.

Acknowledgement . . .

To put out a school annual is no small task. The innumerable details, the great diversity of sources, the difficulty of organizing the material—all of these things make the job of compilation and publication difficult. It is at this point—when all the pictures have been taken, when all the copy save this has gone to the printers, and when the editor has nothing to do except read final proofs,—that he feels that the time for casting up accounts has come.

The sincerest and most heartfelt thanks of the editors must be extended primarily to the staff. Few finer, more co-operative groups could be found on any campus and it is due to their efforts on behalf of the LOYOLAN that the editorial burden has been considerably lightened.

To Doctor Zabel, our moderator, we extend a heartfelt vote of thanks for the personal interest he has taken in the publication of this book and for his invaluable assistance in solving major problems.

Since a yearbook is a commercial product of the engraving, printing, photographic and cover designing arts, the representatives of these firms come into considerable contact with the editors. A personal opinion is that few men could be found with more genuine interest in the problems of the editor or with more sympathy for the difficult situation into which his inexperience occasionally leads him. Mr. Fred Montiegel, of Pontiac Engraving and Electrotpe Company, has been friend, companion and mentor to this year's editors. His restraining humor has calmed the somewhat distracted members of the staff when the situation became increasingly complex. Mr. Edward J. Bryan of the Pantagraph Printing and Stationery Company has capably solved our printing problems for us. The success of his task lies in the reader's hands. Without John Roach of Root Studios, the yearbook as a pictorial record of University Life would be surprisingly inadequate. Class groups, Senior pictures, and many other special groups have been due to the trusty camera of John's which has travelled the length and breadth of Chicago for the LOYOLAN. Mr. Harold Beckett of Kingscraft Products has been responsible for the beautiful cover of this book.

Our twelve month task is nearing its close. So now until the work on the next book begins, this is the
